Public Fire Protection Charge

Back to more info on the Public Fire Protection Charge that will start January 1, 2019.

All Utility customers, including churches, schools and government entities, will be responsible for paying the Public Fire Protection Charge. They will pay the same rate as any other customer with the same meter size.

The public fire protection charge will only be collected from customers of the water utility within the City of Cumberland.

State law requires that if any non-utility customers are directly charged for PFP, then ALL non-utility customers must be charged and we have no way of equally charging those. No method of billing for Public Fire Protection will ever be perfect.

If you have questions, feel free to contact me at clerk@cityofcumberland.net or at 715-822-2752.

A View from the Lake: Beaver Dam Lake Management District Update

By Tom Schroeder, President

Even though late Sept and October so far have been rainy with below normal temperatures, the explosion of color of the maples, aspen, oaks and other trees is painting the lakeshore and the country side. It is easy to understand why fall is a favorite time of the year for many residents. Even though we have to pull the boats, pontoons and other fun watercraft, along with the docks and lifts, in preparation for the weather to come, all we have to do is look back and remember the great summer we had on the Lake.

The BDLMD commissioners have had a chance to relax a bit the past few months before picking up the projects and challenges of the coming budget year. The commissioners are discussing continuing construction of “Healthy Lakes,” “Fish Sticks” projects on the shoreline of Beaver Dam Lake. Grants from the WDNR are available to offset the cost of placing the “Fish Sticks.” However, property owners must make the commitment to have the “Fish Sticks” placed on their property along with the obligation to develop at least 350 square feet of shoreline improvement and maintain the site for 10 years. Any property owner that is interested in the “Fish Stick” program should go to the Lake District website at beaverdamlake.org and send us an email on the in bedded link. The message will be forwarded to me. Be sure to include your address, phone number(s), and email address.

It appears that the treatment last spring for Eurasian Water Milfoil - EWM was quite successful. Very little EWM was observed floating on the surface during the summer. The July Aquatic plant survey and the follow-up survey in October will provide the data that will be the basis for the 2019 treatment plan. A major concern for a second year is the Fern Grass growth on much of the City Bay which is located north

Northwoods Notebook: A women’s night of wine, food and theater - for a cause

by Larry Werner

Pastor Tim Schmidt at First Lutheran Church in Cumberland says that people sometimes show up at a service, or walk in the door of his church, needing help with a problem you wouldn’t normally associate with our small, rural community: homelessness. They sometimes ask for help paying for a hotel room, or a meal. When he asks a few questions, Pastor Tim discovers that these folks need the services of a place in Rice Lake called Benjamin’s House, on whose board the Cumberland minister has served for five years.

now but is in constant need of financial support. That’s why Ann Kysely, a retired Cumberland English teacher and former board member of Benjamin’s House, has put together a fund-raiser on Tuesday, Oct. 30. It’s a “Ladies Night Out” with wine and appetizers at Peter & Annie’s and the adjacent Dancing Bird Art Gallery. After eating and drinking, the women will head up the street to the Cumberland Arts Center for a performance of the hilarious play “Packer Fans from Outer Space.” Tickets are $35 and available at Peter & Annie’s. The

Pastor Timothy Schmidt

So he’ll refer these people in need to the former convent of the Sisters of St. Joseph that sits on an island in Rice Lake. There, men, women and children get a place to live, and help from case workers in finding a permanent home and a job. Schmidt says he joined the board because he saw a need. “Homelessness in our area is a little bit hidden,” Schmidt said one day last week. “You don’t see people sitting on the streets. They’re more couch-surfing or bouncing around from place to place. We see it from people stopping asking for help, through kids in our church who have friends or through Kinship. There are people in our community who are homeless. In our colder area, you think about how dangerous that can be.” The Cumberland pastor joined the board at a time when the Rice Lake shelter was in financial distress, on the verge of closing its doors. First Lutheran had some “mission money” from a bequest. A large donation was made to Benjamin’s House, which has been around since 2011 as a nonprofit helping people with temporary housing and finding permanent housing and employment. Pastor Tim said the home is on solid financial footing of the HWY. 48 bridge. Normally fern grass grows only a few feet from the bottom of the lake and does not canopy. The thick growth of this aquatic plant made for navigation problems for much of the summer. This problem will be an item for discussion at the 2019 treatment plan meeting that will occur in late Jan. 2019. In a recent Lake Tides newsletter, I noticed a research article about wood ticks that was written by Michel Block, UW-Stevens Point student. He noted that since 1980 over 38,000 cases of Lyme’s disease have been reported in Wisconsin. An estimated 75% of the cases were contacted in residential areas. Ticks aren’t easy to stop as they can easily survive our frigid winters and can survive underwater for more than two weeks. The one noteworthy part of his article is that he found that simple wood chips are able to deter the pesky creature. Amazingly, wood ticks are reluctant to enter areas of wood chips as they get lost in the wood chips and dehydrate, so they avoid them altogether. Some plants like lavender, sage, or chrysanthemum, or strips of cedar mulch with cedar oil have also been suggested as tick deterrents. However, a thorough check of your clothes and body after being outside and knowing the warning signs of a tick bite are still your best prevention for avoiding tick related illnesses. The County will again be lowering the lake by about six inches from the level that is normally maintained during the summer months.

With the recent rains the lowering process may not reach the low level until possibly late Nov. A major reason for doing this is to reduce the effect of “ice jacking”. When the ice forms on the lake the dropping temperature causes the ice to contract. When the ice cracks, the cracks fill with water that then freezes. When the temperature of the ice rises the ice expands and there is no place for the ice to go but to push up onto the shoreline. As the ice continues to expand and contract during the winter there is a ratcheting effect which puts tremendous pressure on the shoreline. As an example, one mile of ice can expand almost three feet when the ice temperature goes from around 14F to 32F. The amazing thing is that this can happen within hours when no snow cover is present. There are natural benefits to the environment from “ice jacking” but that is a subject for a future article. For those interested in this subject check “ice jacking” on the internet. Enjoy the fall color and all the fun things fall has to offer.

Opinion

By Craig Bucher

It has turned cold. The temperature has been below normal for the past two weeks and some areas of Wisconsin have even seen snow. If the temperature stays below normal it will be a long winter. Some of my “snow bird” friends are leaving for the south sooner than usual. Given the unpleasant weather we have been having, I will still take living here in fly-over-land rather than many other areas of the country. I was watching “Beach Front Living” on HGTV the other night. They were touting the wonderful living, on ocean front beaches, on the coast of Florida. All I can think about is the wasteland left by the last hurricane that just finished ravishing the little Florida coastal town of Mexico City. Block after block of utter destruction. Before it was all over, the destruction traveled some 200 miles up to Virginia. Or if you prefer California, you might have to live through the horrible devastation of forest fires. It seems that there are six or seven major forest fires every year. Nope! It is not for me! Even though I complain, I will take the cold and the occasional blizzard. I think we live in a pretty special area of the country. I am not sure I want to live anywhere else.

I am getting tired of all the lies and half-truths made by political candidates. I am also sickened by all the candidates that will “fight” for me. Just once, I would like to hear a candidate that will honestly say they will work as hard as they can to improve our health care system, or that they will have, as a top priority, improving our educational system. I would like to hear a candidate say, as President Carter did - If you elect me, “I will never lie to you.” That is the candidate I can really support. What ever your political persuasion, don’t forget to vote. I think you forfeit the right to complain if you don’t go to vote.

SEE YOU NEXT WEEK!

Impressions from the Senate Debate

To the Editor:

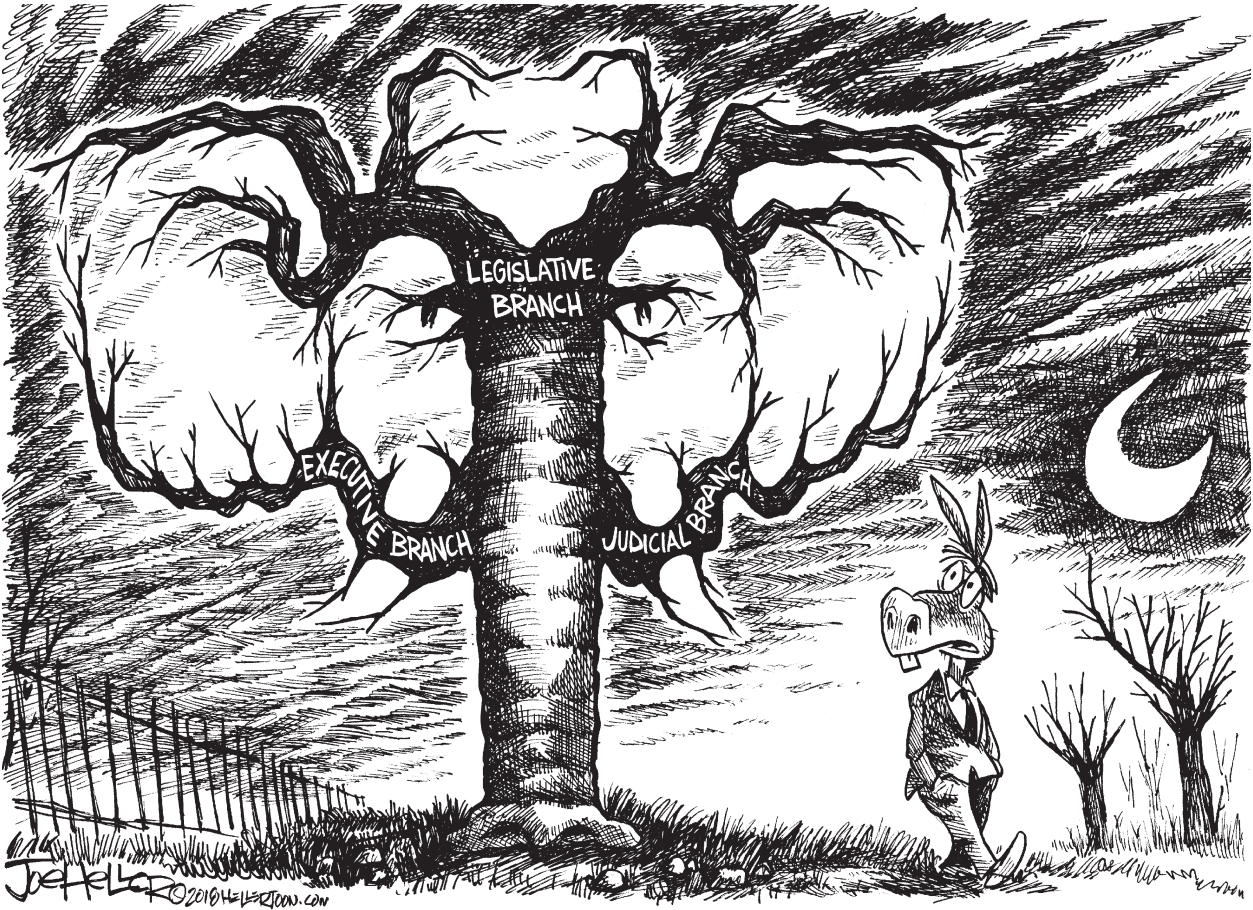

The other night I tuned into the US Senate debate on the radio. Since I didn’t know much about Leah Vukmir, I decided to listen. It didn’t take long for me to realize that Ms. Vukmir was more interested in attacking Tammy Baldwin than answering questions. The vitriol in some of her comments did not impress me. You can’t build yourself up by tearing someone else down! That’s not the kind of person I want representing me in Washington.

I do, however, know what kind of person Tammy Baldwin is from my first hand experiences visiting her office in Washington D.C. when lobbying with a group from WI. She cares enough about her constituents and our concerns to meet face-to-face with us every time, even if it means rushing back to her office after addressing the Senate in order to keep her appointment with us. I am impressed with Tammy’s genuine interest in our issue and how she can help.

I also like the fact that Tammy has an excellent track record when it comes to working across the aisle to find bipartisan solutions. I feel strongly that bipartisanship is something we desperately need more of if we ever hope to find common ground. Do I agree with Ms. Baldwin’s positions on every issue? No. But I think her integrity, her sincerity, her common sense approaches to finding solutions, and her willingness to work with others to solve our problems makes her the better candidate. We don’t need to send another angry politician to Washington.

Reach of angel, venture capital extends beyond portfolio companies

APPLETON, WI: Most people think of venture capital as a big-city sport, with East and West Coast metros standing out as major-league players. Mid-sized cities such as Madison and Milwaukee are emerging targets for venture capital investment, but they’re still seen as competing for smaller pools of dollars.

The rest of the country, including much of Wisconsin, lies largely outside the venture economy... Or does it?

The story of NeuWave Medical, a medical therapy company that grew out of UW-Madison research before it was acquired a global health-care firm, shows how venture and angel capital often flows to suppliers and other businesses throughout the economy.

Scott Button, managing director of Venture Investors LLC, recounted the NeuWave deal at a Oct. 11 meeting of the Tech Council Innovation Network in Appleton. It was a case study of how young, venture-backed companies grow – and it also illustrated how angel and venture capital dollars spread across the economy.

NeuWave was acquired by Ethicon, a division of Johnson & Johnson, in 2016 following a 12-year journey from idea to U.S. Food and Drug Administration clearance to widespread medical use. At the time it was acquired, NeuWave’s tumor-destroying system had been used to treat nearly 14,000 patients in 272 medical centers. The company had 114 employees in 2016, of which almost all have remained in Wisconsin.

The core process is “tumor ablation,” which uses high-energy microwaves to precisely remove cancer in human livers. The doctor inserts a thin, needle-like probe into the tumor. A high-frequency current is then passed through the tip of the probe or probes, which heats the tumor and destroys the cancer cells.

Traditional liver surgeries for such tumors can lead to high blood loss, longer hospital stays and occasional deaths. Tumor ablation is often a same-day procedure with better outcomes, faster recovery and less cost.

It was developed through a collaboration between physician-scientists and engineers at the UW-Madison, with researchers Fred Lee and Dan van der Weide leading the way and starting a precursor company, Micrablate, in 2004. By 2008, Venture Investors was involved as a lead investor and eventually merited about $12 million into the company, which raised about $54 million over time.

Some of that money went into developing components of the NeuWave system, such as a high-pressure cooling system, an electro-mechanical cart, an electronic enclosure and a power delivery module through Wisconsin companies such as Sani-Matic, MPE Mobility Systems, Allied Panels and Plexus. Materials for the probe, as well as assembly and testing, were also sourced almost entirely in Wisconsin.

As Button explained, that’s not unusual for portfolio companies financed by Venture Investors. “Often, that money stays pretty close to home,” he said.

An informal 2017 survey of about two-dozen venture-backed companies by the Wisconsin Technology Council, including several with technology developed at academic institutions, showed the same pattern. Suppliers, consultants and other professional services were obtained by those companies in 50 of Wisconsin’s 72 companies.

The ripple effects of angel and venture capital often go unrecognized by those who believe such investments only help companies in Madison and Milwaukee. Young companies need services that range from prototypes to legal help, from electronic components to accounting, and from engineering to logistics. In that way, they’re much like other companies in an intertwined economy.

The NeuWave Medical story has many angles that make it a Wisconsin poster child: Talented inventors from a leading academic campus who knew enough to stand aside as business managers when the time was right; early angel investors, family funds and loans; a product that improved human health; and the attraction of a major company that has planted a flag in Wisconsin. It also has the long tail of a supply chain, making venture capital much more than a two-party deal.

Still is president of the Wisconsin Technology Council, which will hold the Wisconsin Early Stage Symposium Nov. 7-8 in Madison.

Donaven C. Sprague, 32, of Ridgeland, has been charged with repeated sexual assault of the same child. His adjourned initial appearance was scheduled for October 17, 2018.

Peter R. Cupp, 34, of Turtle Lake, has been charged with resisting an officer. The criminal complaint states that on Tuesday, October 9, 2018, at approximately 8:47 p.m., while on routine patrol, Cumberland Police Officer Frey observed a vehicle coming toward him with its four-way flashers on, at the intersection of 1st Avenue and Washington Street. Officer Frey made contact with the driver of the vehicle, N. V., who advised he had just dropped his brother off at the Cumberland Police Department because his brother was intoxicated and he was having a hard time dealing with him.

Officer Frey observed a male, who was later identified as Peter R. Cupp, at the end of the driveway at the Cumberland Police Department. Officer Frey was advised by Dispatch that Cupp was on probation with a condition not to consume alcohol. Officer Frey asked Cupp if he had been drinking and Cupp admitted to having a couple of drinks. Officer Frey administered a preliminary breath test and the result showed a .175. Probation requested a hold be placed on Cupp.

Officer Frey transported Cupp to the Barron County Jail without incident. However, at the jail, Cupp, who was passed out when they arrived, started to become verbally belligerent and began making sudden movements toward the correctional staff after he woke up. Cupp had to be forcefully taken to the search wall because he would not comply with the directives given by officers. Cupp struggled with the officers and would not cooperate, preventing them from searching his person.

While being escorted to a holding cell, Cupp continued to struggle with officers to avoid going into the cell. It took four correctional officers and Officer Frey to get Cupp in the cell. The incident was recorded on Officer Frey's body camera.

If convicted Cupp may be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than nine months or both. He is scheduled to appear December 12, 2018.

George J. Fiorentino, 55, of Rice Lake, has been charged with possession of methamphetamine, two counts of carrying a concealed knife and two counts of possession of drug paraphernalia.

The criminal complaint states that on Sunday, October 7, 2018, at approximately 8:37 p.m. Rice Lake Police Officer Olson was dispatched, based on an anonymous tip, that George Fiorentino, was under the influence of methamphetamine and walking around with a large knife scaring people. It was reported that he was last seen in the area of the King Edward Inn in Rice Lake. Officers Olson and Eckes responded to the area.

Officer Olson observed Fiorentino walking east-bound across Main Street at Eau Claire Street headed toward the King Edward Inn, he recognized him from prior mugshots.

Officer Olson made contact with Fiorentino and verbally confirmed his identity. Officer Olson explained the complaint which had been received and Fiorentino said he had two knives. Fiorentino then opened the front of his coat, and Officer Olson observed two large knives tucked in his belt, both of which had been concealed beneath his coat.

Fiorentino began to reach toward the knives and toward his pockets and Officer Olson ordered him to stop reaching for the knives and spread his arms out. Officer Olson collected both knives from Fiorentino's person. One knife was a Buck model 119 hunting knife, with a six-inch blade, the other was an Ultimate Survival Technologies one piece skeletonized knife with a cord wrapped handle and a 4 1/2 inch blade.

Fiorentino again placed his hands inside his pockets and Officer Olson again instructed him not to do so. Officer Olson conducted a pat-down of Fiorentino, and in his upper left breast pocket, he felt what he recognized to be a pipe. Officer Olson asked him what kind of pipe was in his pocket and he stated it was a "bubble," which is a term used to describe a glass pipe commonly used to consume methamphetamine. Officer Olson retrieved the pipe and observed that the pipe was used and had a crystallized residue inside of it. Officer Olson also located a plastic bag containing 40 to 50 unused gem baggies.

A search was conducted of Fiorentino's apartment and vehicle. In the apartment Officer Olson located a digital scale with residue on it, as well as a used syringe needle. Officer Olson and Officer Eckes searched Fiorentino vehicle, inside of which they located a full box of new syringes, similar to the one found in the apartment, and laying next to the box was a single syringe which was used and which Officer Olson observed a small amount of a crystalline substance inside the syringe near the plunger.

Officer Olson field tested all four items, which tested positive for the presence of methamphetamine.

Fiorentino had earlier told Officer Olson that he had the knives on his person because he was working on his car, and did not have any tools. Officer Olson observed a large variety of tools in both the apartment and the car.

If convicted Fiorentino may be fined not more than $31,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years and two months, or both, his driver's license may also be suspended for not less than one year, nor more than five years. His preliminary hearing was held October 15, 2018.

Naomi J. Geiger, 25, of Rice Lake, has been charged with two counts of misdemeanor battery, criminal damage to property, domestic abuse, disorderly conduct, domestic abuse, and felony bail jumping. (failure to comply with the terms of her bond by consuming alcohol).

The criminal complaint states that on Sunday, October 7, 2018 at 11:01 p.m. Rice Lake Police Officer Eckes was dispatched to an apartment on East John Street in Rice Lake, for a report of a domestic disturbance. Upon arrival he spoke with a male subject inside the residence.

As Officer Eckes entered the apartment he noticed on the kitchen table, a pair of pants that had been ripped, as well as a pair of boxers which were covered in blood. He also observed a phone cord which was cut and a large gash in the kitchen table.

Officer Eckes asked the male subject to describe the relationship with Geiger. He said he had asked her to marry him approximately three months earlier and that they have a child in common.

He further stated that on October 4, 2018, he was sleeping when Geiger began screaming at him over spam email messages that were on his phone from August. He said she started pushing and hitting him. He stated she hit him with a closed fist in the face at least three times. He stated he pushed her off of him and went into the garage to smoke a cigarette. He said she came out to the garage yelling and screaming and telling him to leave. He stated she was throwing things at him and his new car. She then picked up his softball bat and hit him in the right forearm.

He further stated that on the night of October 6th, he went to a wedding, and returned home at around 11:50 p.m. As he was going to lay down, a friend called him and requested a ride home. He said he gave his friend a ride home and then returned home on October 7th at approximately 1:20 a.m. Geiger was awake when he returned home and immediately pushed him and told him to leave. He told her he wasn't going to leave and she then punched him with a closed fist on the right side of his face.

She then got a butcher knife from the kitchen drawer and stated "who needs these (phone cords) if you don't use them," and cut the cords. He stated she then began waving the knife at him and pointing it in his direction. She then stabbed the kitchen table with the knife and slashed at the wall with the knife. She put the knife down and he attempted to walk past her.

At this point, she grabbed the pocket of his dress pants attempting to get his phone. She eventually got his phone and in the process ripped his pants almost completely off. She took his phone and threw it against the wall, causing the phone to break.

Geiger, who was then in a rage, began punching him repeatedly in the head. He attempted to defend himself. When he let go of her she went into the closet and

Sophie's First Deer

Hello friends,
This weeks challenge was a good one. I was going to take a 12-year-old girl camping and hunting for the first time. Twelve-year-old Sophie Andes is a 7th grader at Mayville Middle School. I would be taking Sophie to Ben and Angie Gruber's farm which is located in Wood County near Auburndale.

The Gruber farm is the same place Selina harvested her first buck and where I took my niece Allie Schuster on her first deer hunt last year and she also harvested a buck.

Friday, October 4th
High 52, low 38

To add to this challenge, naturally it would be raining as we drove to the Gruber farm. As soon as we reached our destination Sophie and I set up camp as quick as possible with my golden retrievers Fire and Ruby being on top of the world because they got to go camping. We tarped our tent, set up propane lights, created a kitchen, put two cots together and then headed out to get set up for the next mornings hunt.

We were short on daylight and had a quick talk with Angie Gruber and her four-year-old daughter Addie as they picked eggs. As we were talking Angie pointed out an albino deer as it was making its way through a creek bottom.

When Sophie and I hiked to where we were going to hunt something was staring at us in the forest, and it was a beautiful albino buck, the other one was a doe so Sophie had just witnessed a pretty cool and rare experience in nature.

We had a two person ladder stand and we put an umbrella above it attached to the tree, this really works. Last but not least, I put a chicken droppings on our tree as a cover scent and then it was back to camp for supper and a good nights sleep.

Saturday, October 5th
High 51, low 35

Sophie and I were setup in our stand an hour before first light and as soon as it was light out I taught her two games. One is called spot the wildlife, and you get one point for a squirrel, two for ducks, four for turkeys, and five for a deer. This game teaches kids to be observant in a fun way.

The other game I play is aim the 30:06 in all directions of the stand, so that when the time comes you are more ready then if you had not aimed the gun. Today Sophie and I had a great day and took a long break in the middle of the day where Sophie really enjoyed hanging out with the Gruber's horses and we had the revelation that my golden retriever Ruby is coming into heat, she will be meeting her boyfriend Tango, next week.

Though we gave it our best we did not see a deer today and in a way I was kind of glad that Sophie had not had easy street and shot one right away on her first hunt.

Sunday, October 6th
High 48, low 36

We were back in the stand long before daylight and had until 9:00 to hunt and then it was time to break camp and for Sophie to head home. As usual we played aim the rifle, and spot the wildlife and at 8:56, I started packing my pack from up in the stand.

At that same moment I saw the flicker of what I was sure was a deer's ear off in the forest. For about two minutes we watched at least two deer that Sophie could not get a shot at, but let me tell you she was ready. For a good ten minutes I told Sophie that there was a good chance we would see them again and just like that I spotted a deer a solid 140-yards away. It took Sophie a minute to get it in her sights and I let her brace the rifle on my arm and when she pulled the trigger the doe vanished.

Sophie looked at me and said that she was thankful for the experience even though she had probably missed. I told her that I thought she hit it, and after a very long walk which was filmed, we came across a beautiful doe that never knew what hit it.

Folks this was an incredible moment in both of our lives and before Sophie left this trip her deer was cut up, she had the hide, the head, and the hoofs. Though she was not a venison eater 24-hours ago, the following night Sophie, her brothers and sister would all consume and enjoy as much as their belly's could handle.

Knowing God

By: Pastor Preston Paul

St. Matthews Lutheran Church, Almena

"Let me hear...what God the LORD will speak." Psalm 85:8

If you believe that God created all things, or at least is the architect, then you are able to look at nature and deduce a few things about God. "He who planted the ear, does he not hear? He who formed the eye, does he not see?" (Psalm 94:9). It is logical that the one who poked a hole in each side of your head (ears)...hears. Obviously, the one who thought it good to create eyes...sees.

The fact that you have ears must mean God desired you to hear something-the sounds of nature no doubt, but also sounds from Him, His mouth (he gave you one of those too). Receiving Words of God must be the primary and most important purpose of your ears. How else would you know Him more fully and completely? We can infer a few things about God from His creation. But there is much more to an architect and carpenter than the houses they design and build

There is much more to know about God than can be reasoned from nature. And there is also the possibility that what you may glean from nature about God is wrong. Humans regularly presume wrong things about other humans. Surely, you are capable of doing the same with your assumptions and feelings about God.

God has revealed who He is in the Bible. He shows His personality to you with words, words for your ears. The Bible is "God breathed," words from His mouth. Christians fill their ears with God's Word. (The dear "hear" through eyes or fingers if they are blind).

Christians guard themselves from "contracting" itchy ears...."For the time is coming when people will not endure sound teaching, but having itching ears they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own passions, and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander off into myths" (2 Timothy 4:3-4). The Bible is the Word of God for your ears! May God lead you to a congregation, if you haven't one already, where your ears are filled with God's Word that you may have life and know the joy of Jesus.

don’t do exactly the way some people want to run it, but we do the best we can. There were a lot of people tired by Saturday night.

The leaves are so pretty now, so enjoy them as they are disappearing fast with the rain we have been having.

The dreaded four letter word, snow, arrived, so it’s time to get the nice warm clothes out-it might be a long winter.

Don’t forget Monday, October 22, at 9:30 a.m. at the Senior Center, there will be a talk on how to work your tech items: I pads, phone, Kindle, etc. There will be a question and answer session. The Library was kind enough to set this up for us, so we hope to see you at our center then. Check the Advocate, there are lots of things going on around the area. If you need a ride, ask a friend to drive you, or you can always call Add Life, the day ahead, their phone number is: 715-537-6333.

Till next week-stay warm and don’t work too hard raking all those leaves.

BARRONETT NEWS

By Judy Pieper

Man, if we thought the weather last week was gloomy, what in the world can I say about this week. Snow on October 14th? We still have too many outside things to do to have this kind of nonsense going on. The water in our birdbath was frozen? We are going to have to plug it in again so our little feathered friends can get a drink.

I'll give you my recipe for suet again, just in case you lost it from last year. Trust me on this, the birds all love it and it's much more convenient to make it than to remember to buy it. Here goes: Mix 4 cups old fashioned oatmeal, 4 cups corn meal, 2 cups flour and 1 cup birdseed in a huge mixing bowl. Then melt 1 pound lard and 1 pound crunchy peanut butter in a saucepan and pour it into the dry mixture. Stir, and press into a wax paper lined cake pan. Let it cool and cut it into four pieces. You can wrap the pieces in plastic wrap and keep them in the refrigerator. It draws woodpeckers, nuthatches, chickadees, sparrows—you get the idea. They re fun to watch .

The rain, sleet and snow didn't keep friends and relatives from visiting with Dick and Ruth Grover this past week. A week ago Saturday Pooch Olson and Jody and Monty Lockman drove up from White Bear Lake to visit. They enjoyed lunch together and had a good time catching up on everything that's been going on in each other's lives.

Then, on Tuesday, Dennis and Darlene Spicer came up from Buffalo, MN and spent the day visiting. And, this past Saturday Dick's nieces, Paula Johnson and Annette Ramsden stopped by. Paula and Annette are the daughters of Paula and Hazel Johnson and were raised on a farm just east of Barronett. Ruth said that they thoroughly enjoyed the time spent with all their guests.

Shirley Overvig called on Friday. We chatted for a while and she told me that her son, Ben Lemke, was up for a visit for his home in North Carolina. She said that Ben's home is far enough inland that he didn't have any damage from the latest hurricane.

Bill Gill, Duane and I were among the hundreds of people enjoying Pipe Lake Lutheran Church's chicken dinner on Sunday afternoon. The food was absolutely delicious and there were lots of people to visit with. I picked up a few boxes of greeting cards and a couple pumpkins at their bazaar before dinner Now I just need to find eighteen more pumpkins before the big pumpkin carving party with the kids.

Ron Helstern, Rod Peterson and John Sedor provided musical entertainment for guests waiting upstairs before going to the dining room at Pipe Lake Lutheran. It was wonderful! They played country and western, gospel, and some things in between. From what I understand, their time and talents were donated because they felt that they were contributing to a good cause. Way to go, guys!

We are all hoping Deb Lehmann is doing well. She closed Red Brick Cafe down for a couple weeks for some rest and recuperation. I think she is planning to re-open on October 24th, so then we will be able to stop at the cafe, eat too much and visit with all the other customers. We didn't know how much we'd miss stopping in for coffee and conversation. We're really spoiled, and we want her to get back to business soon.

Tru Lehmann, and Wrigley Marsh visited with us on Saturday, and we got lots of work done while they were here. While Duane was cleaning the garage and getting equipment ready to put away for the winter, Tru, Wrigley and I went up to the garden and started pulling up plants and hauling them away in the wheelbarrow. They had so much fun. They couldn't believe I was letting them destroy the garden. We still have a little bit to do, but hopefully the weather will be better for outside work this week.

We will be putting fliers for the Scandinavian Smorgasbord on bulletin boards around town this week. As you probably know, it will be held on Sunday, November 4th, starting at noon. We get our ground beef and ground pork from Louie's for the Swedish meatballs, and I will be using the recipe from Ken Rohl again this year. We have fresh cranberries from Golden Pond cranberry bog to make the cranberry-orange sauce. I still need to pick up a few things, but we're almost ready for the big day. I hope you have it marked on your calendar and that you will be able to join us for dinner.

I read that scientists have finally concluded that Google is female. Their reasoning-Google never lets a person finish a sentence before making a suggestion.

That's all I have from Barronett this week. Stay warm. See you next week.

Red Cross calls for winter heroes to host blood drives and save lives

Looming shortfall of blood drives could impair patient care

Every two seconds someone in the U.S. needs blood. To help meet the constant demand for lifesaving blood donations and prevent blood shortages this winter, the American Red Cross is urging individuals and organizations to be winter heroes by hosting a blood drive.

Right now, the Red Cross needs about 6,500 additional groups across the country to host blood drives in December, January and February to ensure blood will be there for patients who rely on blood products. In this area, about 500 more blood drive hosts are needed. During the winter, there is often a decrease in the number of blood drives, which can contribute to blood shortages.

“When someone hosts a blood drive, they give donors a chance to donate lifesaving blood, in turn helping to save dozens or even hundreds of lives,” said Cliff Numark, senior vice president, Biomedical Services. “Blood shortages are not uncommon during the winter months, and these shortages could cause delays in patient care. But with the help of volunteer blood drive partners, the Red Cross can be better prepared to meet patient needs all winter long.”

To learn more about hosting a blood drive and to sign up, visit RedCrossBlood.org/HostADrive. Blood drive partners who host a drive between Dec. 20 and Jan. 6 will receive long-sleeved Red Cross T-shirts for all who come to give, and if the partner achieves its donation goal, it will be recognized in a national newspaper highlighting its lifesaving work.

Hosting a blood drive
Because more than 80 percent of blood donations are made at blood drives hosted by volunteers, blood drive partners play a vital role in helping ensure a sufficient blood supply for patients in need. In addition to helping save lives, organizations that host blood drives can also build goodwill in their community, bringing people together around a central cause.

Organizing a blood drive is easier than many expect, and blood drive coordinator Joe Turner agrees. Since 2016, Turner has hosted an annual blood drive at his church in memory of his father, Woody, who battled cancer for many years and needed platelets during treatment.

“Hosting a blood drive with Red Cross is pretty simple,” said Turner. “The donor recruitment manager takes care of the drive logistics, and I help by asking my friends and family to schedule an appointment to give blood at the drive.”

A Red Cross representative works with the host every step of the way, providing planning assistance, tools to recruit blood donors, equipment and supplies, and the trained staff needed to screen donors and collect donations. Blood drive hosts provide a large, open location, identify volunteers to support donor recruitment, and recruit and schedule blood donors. Turner actively recruits blood donors for the drive using social media, flyers and a SleevesUp campaign.

“I would encourage those who are thinking about hosting a blood drive to simply do it. Help your community. Everybody knows somebody who has needed blood, or may need blood at some point,” said Turner. “When you think of how many people can benefit from the blood donations given at one drive, that’s most rewarding to me.”

got a pair of scissors. She then began cutting his shirts in half. She came back out of the closet, pushed him, and then hit him in the nose, which immediately began bleeding. He stated that his head was spinning and hurt so bad he had to sit down. At some point, after she punched him in the nose, she went outside and slashed the two back tires of his car. He later located his PS4 which was smashed.

The male subject showed Officer Eckes the broken items as well as the bat, and the knife. Officer Eckes observed the knife still had sheet rock on the blade.

Officer Eckes later spoke with Geiger, who returned to the apartment after Officer Eckes made phone contact with her. She admitted that she picked up the knife because she was mad at the male subject. She also admitted that she picked up the bat, however denied hitting him or his car. She admitted to throwing his phone, as well as smashing the PlayStation 4.

In the process of speaking with Geiger, Officer Eckes could smell the odor of intoxicants coming from her. He administered preliminary breath test and the result was .158.

Officer Eckes observed the damage to the car, as well as the bat that was described as the one Geiger had used to hit the male subject and smash his car. The bat appeared to match up perfectly with the size and shape of the dent in the car.

If convicted Geiger may be fined not more than $41,000 and imprisoned for not more than eight years and three months. Domestic abuse assessments may also be imposed on four of the accounts. Her arraignment is scheduled for January 16, 2019.
