Thousands Aid in Search for Missing Jayme Closs

Jayme Closs

Over 2,000 volunteers answered the call to help with ground searches near Barron on Tuesday morning, October 23rd. The searchers were taken to go over "areas of interest" identified through information received from the over 1,200 tips called into the various hotlines. So many people showed up to help that some volunteers had to be turned away.

Search continues for missing Barron Teen

It has been a stressful week since the news broke last Monday about the deaths of James and Denise Closs and the disappearance of their 13 year old daughter, Jayme.

Constant throughout the week was the stalwart presence of Barron County Sheriff Chris Fitzgerald. At his daily 4:00 pm briefings, Fitzgerald, along with representatives of the FBI and WIDCI, have shared with us whatever news they could, shooting down rumors, directing the focus of the media attention to what was important - finding Jayme.

The Barron School District and community have held meetings for information and comfort. The media has been repeatedly reminded of the need to address their concerns to the law enforcement agencies who have been putting every available resource into finding the missing girl, and to give the grieving family, friends, and community their privacy.

So many questions were raised by the initial crime scene. We learned in time that the parents had been killed by gunshots , but not why or what happened to Jayme. Those answers are still unknown.

An Amber Alert was issued, even though there was no evidence as to what vehicle(s) were being looked for. On Thursday, community volunteers walked the surrounding area searching for evidence. Nothing of "evidentury value" was discovered.

By Friday's press briefing, over 1,000 tips had been logged on both tip lines with over 800 having been investigated.

On Monday, the Sheriff was able to release photos and information on two vehicles seen in the area of the Closs home at the time period in question. In releasing the photos, Fitzgerald reminded everyone that these were "vehicles of interest" and not necessarily "suspects." The vehicles in question are a red or orange Dodge Challenger and either a black Ford Edge or black Acura MDX. No license plate information was available. The tipline had received over 1,200 tips by then, with over 1,000 having been closed.

Fitzgerald also asked for community volunteers to gather on Tuesday morning to assist with further ground searches. The authorities had determined some "areas of interest" from tips received. The search team was to be limited to 2,000 people. So many volunteers came that authorities had to turn people away.

Besides helping with the ground search, Fitzgerald reminded the community to think back to last week and let them know if you've noticed any of the following in people you know:

Changes in Routine:

• They will miss work. The absence will be sudden and unplanned. They may either be a "no show" or they may offer a reasonable excuse such as illness, death in the family, car trouble, etc.

Choir & Drama Club team-up for a Night of Broadway

For the first time ever, Cumberland High School Choir and Drama Club are teaming up to create a fundraiser that not only raises money, but also provides a night of entertainment for the community. On November 3rd, in the high school gym, these groups will be putting on an event entitled "Broadway Showcase." With both clubs combined, this group includes more than 45 students producing a show that includes a three course meal with it.

Guests can expect to be delighted with acts from various Broadway musicals, ranging from the newest hit musical Hamilton, to Disney songs of Aladdin, and classics from shows like The Sound of Music and Guys and Dolls. Cumberland students will show off their talent, performing solos, duets, and group numbers; and their acting will having you tearing up over emotional numbers and laughing like crazy during others. Overall, there will be 27 scenes performed, spread out between the soup and salad course, the main meal, and the dessert course.

This show contains veteran upperclassmen that have performed in previous school shows, but it has also opened up many opportunities to see Cumberland's newest batch of talent, with a large cast of freshman and sophomore performers. Many of the students have even come in for summer lessons to make sure that their acts are polished and ready to perform. We hope that you will join us for a night of music and food. Tickets on sale now for $25 and can be bought by calling the Cumberland High School Office, 715-822-5121.

Northwoods Notebook: Scarecrows add life, of sorts, to the street

by Larry Werner

The experts say it's healthy for communities to have activity on the streets of our downtowns.

Lots of small cities have main streets that once bustled but lost vitality as big-box stores, mostly notably Wal-Mart, drew shoppers away from independent merchants, who often closed up shop.

One of the things I like best about Cumberland is our downtown remains a central business district of locally-owned, independent businesses. And there are few empty storefronts. At this time of year, thanks to Stacy Richette, those businesses liven up our main street with scarecrows.

Stacy, owner of Magic Touch Massage and Aspen Acupuncture Clinic, started the scarecrow contest a few years ago. It quickly became a signature event that brings people to town to see the creative ways businesses decorate their storefronts in the weeks before Halloween. The scarecrow sculptures tend to reflect the nature of the businesses that create them.

Last year, at Toftness Chiropractic, a bent-over straw man with a bad back crawled up the front steps. At the Tower House, our long-closed restaurant, two skeletons sat at a table waiting for their order, leading to speculation that Pat Kennedy, who bought the place after Lance and Julie Burma closed it, might be reopening the iconic eating establishment.

And I'll never forgot the bank-robber scarecrows in front of Cumberland Federal Bank a few years ago.

Richette says the scarecrow contest and the Christ-

Public Fire Protection Charge

Common questions when implementing the Public Fire Protection (PFP) Charge on the Utility Bill. Q: I have multiple meters; will I receive a charge for every meter? The answer is yes. Any meter providing general service will receive the PFP Charge. Q: Am I able to reduce my meter size to reduce my PFP Charge? A: Water meter size is based on delivering the necessary amount of water at the required pressure to all points inside your building. The meter sizing was reviewed at the time your building was constructed or remodeled. If you have questions, feel free to contact me at clerk@cityofcumberland.net or at 715-822-2752.

Opinion

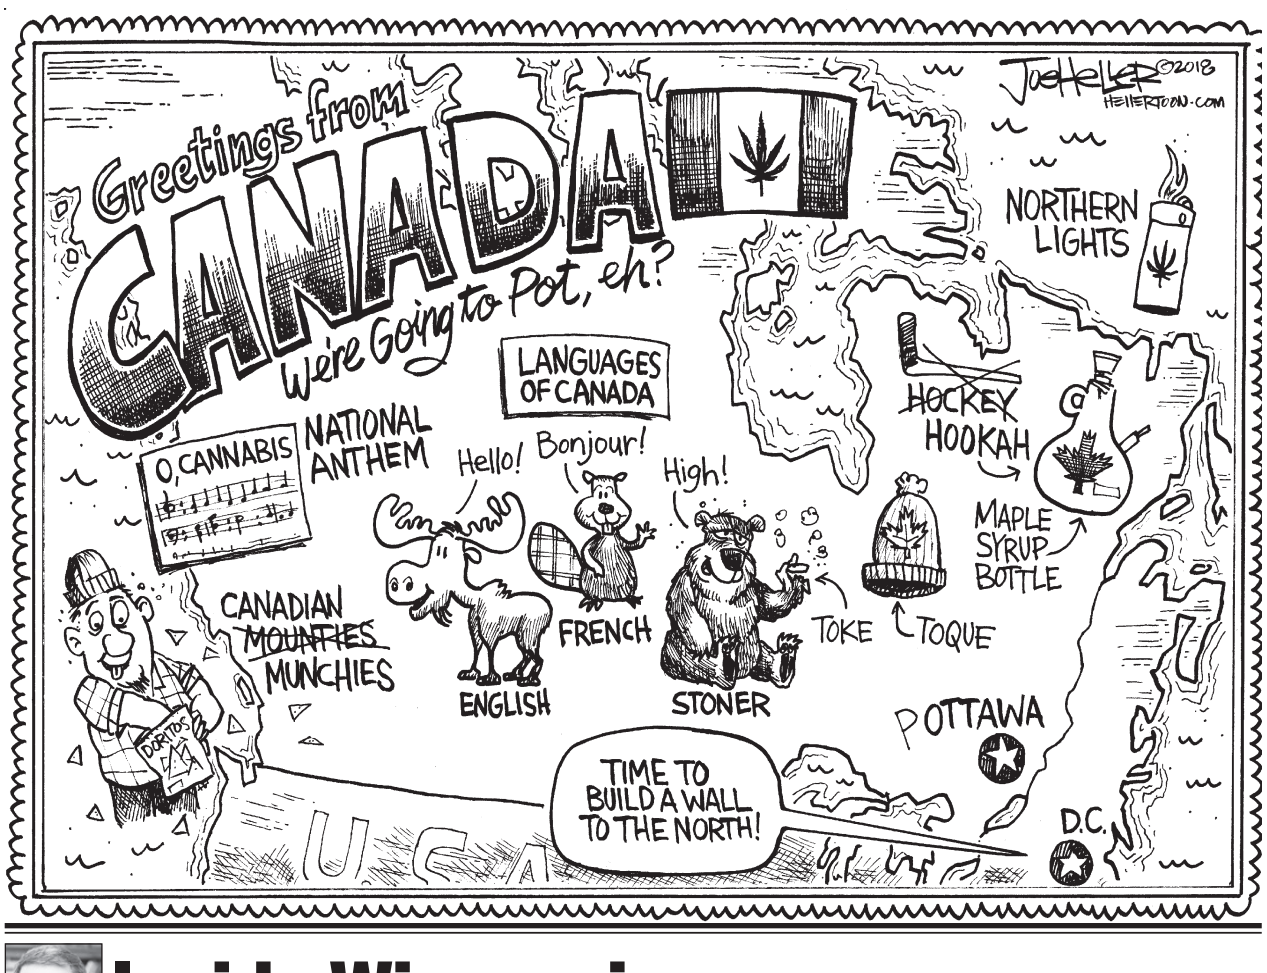

By Craig Bucher

It is a strange country we live in! On the one hand we have a beautiful land filled with water, mountains, hills, valleys, quaint small towns and the freedom to travel from one end to the other without going through any checkpoints or being stopped at any state line, to produce any passport or any other papers. On the other hand we live in a land filled with mass shootings, racial distrust, gender inequality, ever increasing pollution, and distrust of our neighbors, if they don't look just like us. In this election season this distrust has grown with a president who preaches division at every opportunity and cheers at a congressman who body slammed a reporter for asking a question, he didn't like. As election day draws nearer the political advertising grows ever distasteful. On Sunday evening, I watched two different news programs and counted 17 political ads. Every advertisement except one, featured a negative attack that didn't give me a reason to vote "for a candidate" but instead attempted to give me a reason to vote against a different candidate. Using this reasoning I don't know if I am voting for just another crook with a "D" behind his name or as the case may be a "R" behind his or her name. Oh well, I will do the best I can and go to the polls on November 6.

SEE YOU NEXT WEEK!

P.S. What irony - the Sunday newspaper featured an article about the terrible crisis of homeless people living on the streets of San Francisco right next to an advertisement seeking to sell expensive Rolex watches.

Inside Wisconsin

by Tom Still

Improving academic research payoff in Wisconsin requires people, facilities

MADISON, Wis. – By some standards, Wisconsin is a leader among the states when it comes to academic research. Its public and private colleges and universities attract as much as $1.7 billion per year in merit-based grants and contracts to study and provide solutions to society's most pressing problems.

In other ways, Wisconsin is not a model for how academic R&D should work. State government support for basic research has historically been low, and public universities in other states have far more freedom to build needed laboratories and to pay star faculty.

The result is a conflict of expectations: Wisconsin colleges and universities with R&D depth are sometimes accused of not doing enough to launch startup companies and products – and those same institutions respond by saying state policymakers are standing in the way of their own goals.

That was a theme of several recent gatherings of Wisconsin researchers, business leaders, investors and policymakers in Madison and Milwaukee. Those meetings provided a glimpse at problems that appear to be holding back the state's potential to capture more economic growth from its R&D foundation.

Speakers agreed that talented people, the right facilities and real-world connections are necessary ingredients for a more productive research and development climate. Some specific suggestions:

Find ways to attract and keep talented researchers: A few years ago, University of Wisconsin System schools were being "poached" by other universities that tried to take advantage of budget cuts and the perception that UW tenure had been eroded. As UW-Madison Engineering Dean Ian Robertson told members of his advisory boards Oct. 19, the tide has turned. More young professors and researchers are being recruited at his college.

"We're starting to see those people bring in resources that will change the research enterprise," said Robertson, whose College of Engineering already brings in about $120 million in research grants each year. Some of that money is the result of industry partnerships with companies such as Qualcomm, Sub-Zero Wolf, Plexus, Rockwell Automation and Kohler.

The latest example is the Foxconn Technology Group, which will spend $100 million over time to help build a new engineering building and to conduct joint research in fields such as mobility, sensors, applied data analytics, materials science, robotics and medical devices.

Build first-rate facilities cheaper and faster: Within the UW System, chancellors have repeatedly complained about the lack of maintenance dollars from state government and a Byzantine approval process, dating back over decades, that doubles the time it takes to build a campus facility.

"Ten years" was UW-Madison Chancellor Becky Blank's two-word answer when she was asked how long it takes, from concept to construction, to build something big and new on campus. She noted the UW-Madison is the only major public or private university in the United States that does not have its own bond rating for construction borrowing, as all projects must run through state government. That's true even if a new building is financing primarily through donations.

"The constraints I have on capital projects are unprecedented compared to any of my peers, and almost unworkable at this point in time," Blank told an Oct. 16 meeting of the Tech Council Innovation Network in Madison. "I'm really, deeply worried… I despair at times as to whether we will be able to do what we need to do as a 21st century institution."

A similar message was delivered at a Oct. 12 WisPolitics.com luncheon at the UW-Milwaukee Innovation Accelerator, where engineering professor Deyang Qu talked about the importance of recruiting young talent by offering top facilities.

"Lots of our infrastructure is really aging," Qu said. "State money invested in those (facilities) will be doubled or tripled, I think, in returns" because they will be more efficient and attract and retain top talent.

Foster better industry connections: While many colleges and universities are skilled when it comes to winning federal or private foundation grants, they are less adept at making industry connections. Some colleges and universities in Wisconsin are trying to change that by working more directly with businesses that have research needs that translate into commercial products.

Marquette University is a leading private college example, while UW-Milwaukee and UW-Stout are examples of aggressively pursuing industry research on the public side. At UW-Madison, the College of Engineering is also making progress, as demonstrated by the Foxconn grant, and the transformation of the Department of Computer Sciences to a school with more faculty will also help.

"We're not the job creators; we're not the ones doing the research, but what we can help with is the climate," State Sen. Alberta Darling, R-River Hills, told the WisPolitics luncheon. "We have to create a better climate for those connections."

Wisconsin's R&D foundation is substantial. It can only improve with better partnerships.

Still is president of the Wisconsin Technology Council. He is the former associate editor of the Wisconsin State Journal.

Recommending Sarah Godlewski for State Treasurer

To the Editor:

When I was a student at Northland College in Ashland, I worked several part-time jobs: as a residential assistant in the dorms, at a local grocery store, and in the zoning office at City Hall. To make ends meet, I juggled job schedules with the demands of classes and homework. Despite my hard work, I graduated with over $30,000 of debt.

More than a decade later, I am still paying off my student loans along with a house mortgage, car payments, plus daycare costs for my two young sons. I am not alone; across Wisconsin, there are others who struggle to save for the future because of student loan debt.

Student loan debt is a $24 billion problem in Wisconsin that affects over 1 million across our state. This is a problem that drags on the household budgets of working families and has ripple effects on the overall economic health of Wisconsin.

That's why I am voting for Sarah Godlewski for the office of State Treasurer on Tuesday November 6th.

Sarah has a plan to relieve debt burden by using a part of the trust funds managed by the State Treasurer to refinance student loans. Her plan would save thousands of dollars in interest payments for college graduates, while strengthening the financial solvency of state trust funds. With Sarah's plan, Wisconsin will lead the country by offering a student loan refinancing program.

This is a win-win fix. It demonstrates Sarah's pragmatic approach to leadership and policy making. As our state treasurer, Sarah will invest in Wisconsin's people and deliver a greater return for state trust funds. I look forward to voting for her.

Heating Safety Tips From The Cumberland Fire Department

During the cold months, more residential fires-and fire deaths-occur than any other time of the year. The majority of these fires are caused from residential heating sources.

Cumberland Fire District knows the importance of following basic fire safety advice. We hope you find these "cold facts" helpful.

If you have any fire safety questions-whether about the safe way to heat your home-or other general questions-please call us at (715) 822-8107 (non-emergency).

Have a warm, safe winter!

PLANNING AHEAD

There is a 100 percent chance of cold weather-and the need for home heating-every year.

So, the first cold fact is plan ahead. Planning ahead does not require much time or money-just the willingness to want to prevent a tragedy before it occurs. The most important planning facts are:

• Keep your smoke detector working. Never remove the battery. The price of a battery is not worth deactivating one of the most valuable protection systems around. And don't forget to test your detector monthly. Adults can blow smoke from a candle or match to see if the detector sounds. If the detector begins intermittent chirping, it is a signal the battery is losing power. Replace it immediately.

• Keep a charged fire extinguisher handy at all times. However, if you have a fire that is large or spreading rapidly, do not try to extinguish it by yourself. Immediately leave the house, getting other members out if possible. Call 9-1-1 from a nearby phone.

• Practice family fire drills. Everyone should know at least two exits out of a bedroom. If equipment is needed, such as a rope or chain ladder for escape from a second-story window, purchase it as soon as possible and store in a readily accessible place (under bed). Everyone should know what to do when the smoke detector sounds. Emphasize the importance of each family member escaping and meeting outdoors at your pre-selected location (such as sidewalk, mailbox, curb) away from the fire.

• Memorize the emergency number for fire, emergency medical service and police response: 9-1-1. When you call this number from a safe location, know your address and the name of the closet intersecting street to your location. Remain calm. Do not hang up until the fire department tells you.

• Observe the cold facts. The following precautions regarding different types of heating sources will keep you safe and warm.

PORTABLE HEATERS

When you choose a portable heater, purchase one approved by a nationally known safety testing laboratory, such as Underwriters Laboratories or Factory Mutual. Look for a heater with a broad, solid base, as well as an automatic cut-off switch which operates when a unit is tipped over.

Thoroughly read all manufacturer's instructions about the installation and use of portable heaters. Keep the instructions in an accessible place, so you can re-read the operating and safety precautions every year.

Place your portable heater so that radiating elements and surfaces are not directed toward objects such as furniture, paper, curtains, and people. (Three-foot clearance is recommended.) Especially watch children and elderly people around portable heaters. Place heaters away from stairways, doors and other traffic paths.

• Never hang objects to dry on your heater.

• Caution children against poking their fingers or other objects through the protective guard of the heater.

ELECTRIC HEATERS

• Check cords on electric heaters. If the cord is frayed or split, or hot to the touch, have it replaced by a professional. Avoid overloading a circuit.

• Some heaters require separate circuits because of high wattage. If in doubt about overloading a circuit, consult an electrician.

• Do not use an extension cord with a portable heater unless it is a heavy duty cord rated as high as the current rating listed on the heater. Never run a heater or extension cord under carpet or rugs.

• Do not use an electric space heater in a bathroom. Do not touch while wet.

LIQUID FUELED HEATERS

• Always use the right fuel in a heater-fuel recommended by themanufacturer. Do not use substitutes or lower grade fuels. Never use gasoline-even for cleaning-as it gives off deadly fumes. Do not smoke when handling flammable liquids.

• Store flammable liquids in special containers outside the residence at all times.

• Never fill a heater with oil or kerosene inside your residence. A fuel spill can be dangerous. Avoid filling a heater completely with oil or kerosene because as fuel warms, it expands; a spill could cause a flare-up.

• Let the heater cool before refueling.

• When using portable heaters, be sure there is proper ventilation to avoid carbon monoxide accumulation.

NATURAL GAS OR LPG* HEATERS

• Buy a space heater approved by a nationally known safety testing laboratory.

• Thoroughly read all manufacturer's instructions about the installation and use of your gas heater. Keep the instructions in an accessible place, so you can re-read the operating and safety precautions every year.

• Space heaters need space. Allow at least three feet of empty space from the front of your heater and other objects such as furniture, paper, curtains and people. Especially watch children and elderly people around space heaters.

• Use metal connectors and tubing for a gas space heater. Never use a rubber hose.

• Periodically check heater for the proper mixture of gas and air.

• When using gas space heaters, light the match before turning on the gas to the burner, thus avoiding the risk of a flare-up from accumulated gas.

• If there is a strong gas smell, turn off gas flow and ventilate by opening windows or doors. Call immediately for gas service personnel.

FIREPLACES

• When using a fireplace, cover the opening with a sturdy metal screen or heat-tempered glass doors to reduce the chance of a fire starting from flying sparks or rolling logs.

• Open the damper before starting any fire. Begin blaze with kindling. Never use lighter fluid, kerosene, gasoline, charcoal lighter fluid or other flammable liquids to ignite a fire.

• Remember to keep matches used to start a fire out of the reach of children.

• Do not use trash as a fireplace fuel. Burning gift wrappings and packaging can create a "flash fire," as well as produce toxic fumes in poorly ventilated fire places.

• Fireplaces should have a hearth made of approved non-combustible material such as brick, stone, ceramic, and tile. Do not place rugs or other highly flammable materials nearby.

• Before and after each heating season, check the chimney for crumbling bricks, loose mortar, obstructions and the build-up of creosote. (Creosote is carried up the chimney as a vapor, some of which cools, condenses and adheres to chimney walls. With each fire burned, the gummy tar-like substance builds up with the soot to cover the chimney with a flammable residue layer.)

• Vacuum of chemical cleaners are not a totally effective way of removing the creosote layer. Qualified personnel should perform cleaning and repairs. Check the Yellow Pages under "Chimney" for professional help.

• Keep a charged fire extinguisher near the fireplace.

• If using man-made logs, follow directions on the package. Many commercial products are not designed for use in pre-fabricated fireplaces, such as those found in many apartments, because of the intense heat produced by artificial logs. Never break a man-made log apart to quicken a fire.

• Never leave a fire unattended. Plan the duration of the fire with a departure or bedtime.

• Do not use water to cool a fire in a fireplace. This can crack the hot firebrick lining.

• Do not close a damper with hot ashes in the fireplace. A closed damper can cause hot ashes to build up heat, and thus be a potential hazard.

• Do not remove ashes from the fireplace for disposal until they are totally cold. Avoid a large build-up of ashes in the fireplace.

OTHER HEATING ADVICE

Central Heating: Have professionals periodically check and clean the system. Leave central heating repairs to experts.

Keep trash and combustible storage away from the heating system. Mobile homes are equipped with specially designed heating equipment. Follow manufacturers' directions for use and maintenance.

OTHER TIPS

• Do not use a gas or electric range or oven to heat a kitchen or other rooms.

• Frozen pipes? Don't try to thaw them with a torch or other open flames. Call the water department for assistance and advice.

• Snow is frequent in our fire district. If there is a heavy snow fall, don't forget to clear the fire hydrant while cleaning driveways and walks.

If you lose your source of heating temporarily, and cannot seek other shelter, here are some basic rules for staying warm:

• Wear wool clothing if possible.

• Wear layers of clothing instead of single layer of thick clothing. Similarly, several lightweight blankets are better than one heavy covering.

• Wear a wool hat, especially while sleeping, since three-quarters of body heat is lost through the head.

• Eat well-balanced meals.

Remember the emergency number in Cumberland Fire District for police, fire and medical emergency: 9-1-1

EYE FACTS from JACOBSON ADVANCED EYE CARE
DON'T RUB YOUR EYES! WHY NOT?
You've heard it from your mom, you've heard it from Dr. Jennifer -- "Don't rub your eyes!" Well, why not? Rubbing your eyes may seem like a relatively harmless thing to do. Most of us do it regularly, whether we are suffering from hay fever or a common cold, or are just feeling tired or groggy. However, if you rub your eyes too often or too hard, you can cause damage in a number of ways:
• Can cause tiny blood vessels to break, resulting in blood-shot eyes.
• Germs carried on your hands are easily transferred and can often result in infections.
• When having a foreign body in your eye, rubbing against the object can very easily scratch the cornea.
• Rubbing is most dangerous to people with certain pre-existing conditions and may find that rubbing worsens their eyesight. Those with glaucoma may find that the spike in eye pressure caused by rubbing the eyes can disrupt blood flow to the back of the eye and lead to nerve damage, and, ultimately permanent loss of vision.

Dr. Jennifer
• Most worrisome, Dr. Jennifer states that, "Studies have shown that continuous eye rubbing in susceptible individuals can also lead to thinning of the cornea which is weakened and pushes forward to become more cone-shaped. This is known as keratoconus and is a serious condition that can lead to distorted vision and ultimately the need for a corneal graft."
So, listen to your mom! Don't rub your eyes!

Football Season Ends in Westby; Final Record 6-4

The 2018 Cumberland Football team saw its fine season come to an end last Friday night, when the Cumberland Beavers lost a first round 32-26 decision to the Westby Norsemen in Westby. The 7th seeded Beavers gave the regions 2nd ranked Norsemen a major scare before falling just short of victory. The Beavers finish the season with a final record of 6 and 4.

"I felt that we were very prepared heading into this game and the kids did everything we asked of them, We just didn't make as many plays as they did," said Coach Corey Berghammer. "We had a good season, but winning a playoff game was one of our goals that our seniors wanted to achieve," he added.

Cumberland did manage to grab an 18-12 first half lead in the contest. Quarterback Reid Olson did a nice job of mixing the pass and run, while the defense had a couple big stops along the way. Olson had one touchdown run, while throwing two touchdown passes, including a 68 yard strike to Andrew Barnes. Unfortunately, Barnes would be injured as the first half ended, taking away his game breaking ability from the Beavers in the games final two quarters.

Cumberland would add one more second half touchdown, but were hurt by three second half turnovers and a relentless Westby ground game, headed by running back Ryan Daines. The Westby senior would finish the game with 283 yards rushing on 34 attempts, while scoring four touchdowns in the contest. His three second half six-pointers would erase the Beavers lead at intermission and fuel their game-winning comeback.

The Beavers offense was once again up to the task as they had 333 total yards in the contest, 119 on the ground and 214 through the air. Unfortunately, due to Westbys ground control game, they would only run 44 total offensive plays in the contest.

Olson completed 13 of 23 passes for 214 yards and three scores. He added a team-high 103 yards rushing in 11 carries for another fine performance.

Sophomore Jack Martens led the receivers with six receptions for 81 yards and a score. Senior Riley Bodsberg added five catches for 45 yards and a touchdown, while rushing for 13 yards in six attempts. Barnes had the one catch for 68 yards and the other Cumberland touchdown reception.

Martens and Bodsberg added defensive interceptions, while Trystin Neitzel, Adam Nyhus, and Olson were among the team leaders in tackles. Unfortunately, the Beavers were unable to stop the Westby running game, something that was an issue in all four Cumberland losses on the year.

"We want to thank the seniors as well as the entire roster for their hard work this fall. It was a good season," concluded Coach Berghammer.

Cross Country Season Ends at St. Croix Central Sectional

The Cumberland Cross Country season came to an end last Saturday as they ran in the St. Croix Central Sectional held in Hammond. Osceola earned their team trip to State by winning both the Woman's and Men's portion of the meet.

Marie Hamlin of the host Panthers was the woman's winner with an excellent time of 19:06, fifty-six seconds ahead of the second place runner. Cumberland was led by Sophomore Val Pasko, who finished 64th with a time of 24:00. Naomi Rodriquez came in 65th with a 24:01, while three Cumberland seniors, Teagan Benson, Kayla Odour, and Emily Springsteen concluded their careers by running in the Sectional. Cumberland finished 14th out of the 15 teams participating.

The Cumberland boys were 14th out of the 14 teams involved and were led by Sophomore Wayne Ankarlo, who finished 48th with a time of 19:31. Senior Nick Hermann finished 83rd with a time of 22:03 , while fellow senior Nick Colburn was 96th, with a run of 25:33. The top time was turned in by Bloomer's Cole Michaelsen, who led the field with a 16:36.

Coach Tanya Majewski thanked the team and especially her seniors for "working to improve their times throughout the fall and a very enjoyable season."

Volleyball Season Ends in Regionals

The Cumberland Volleyball season came to an end last Thursday with a second round WIAA Tournament loss to the #1 seeded Grantsburg Pirates. Grantsburg would go on to win the Regional on Saturday and now prepares for Sectional play this week.

It ended what was a good fall for the Beavers, who finished third in the always tough HON Conference. "We will miss our outstanding senior class, who were a big reason for our amazing season," said Coach Jessica Olson. Lauren Green, Izzy West and Emily Schmitz will graduate off this years team.

To get to Thursday, Cumberland had to defeat Cameron in an opening round Tournament game on Tuesday night. They lost the first set, but came on to defeat the Comets in the next three sets to advance to Grantsburg.

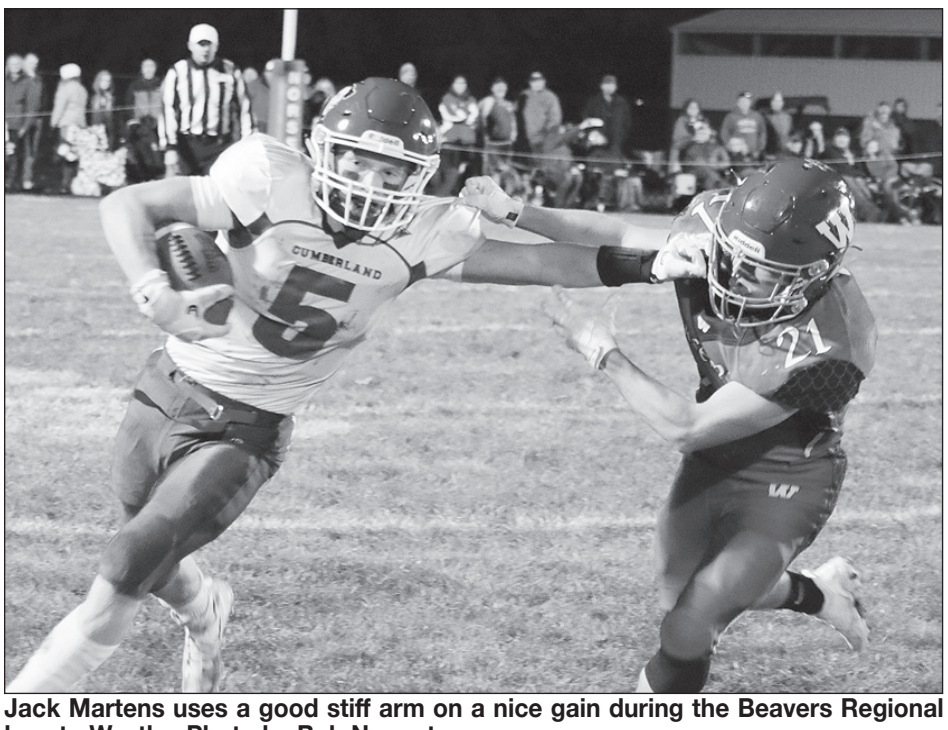

"We played really well and even though we lost the first set, I felt comfortable we would win. Our passing and defense looked good and we served well as a team," said Olson.

Ania Hyatt had another big night with 18 kills and 23 of 24 serving. Kiya Talbot was 20 for 20 serving with four aces, while Izzy West had 27 assists and Lauren Green and Amie West had seven kills each. Olson also credited Payton Nyhus with "excellent defense and digging."

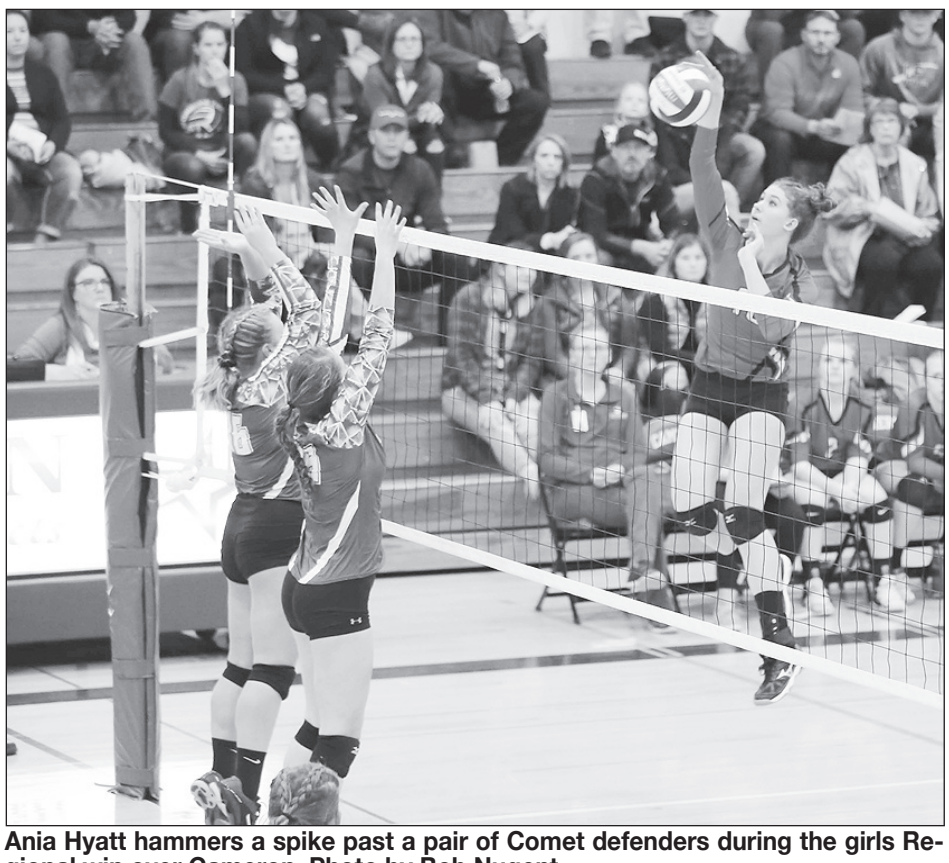

Cumberland then battled Grantsburg closely on Thursday, but lost in three sets. "They are a very good team and play amazing defense. We couldn't get the ball to hit the floor," said Coach Olson.

Green led the team with nine kills, while Izzy West had a team-high 18 assists. Hyatt added eight kills, while Talbot had another good serving night.

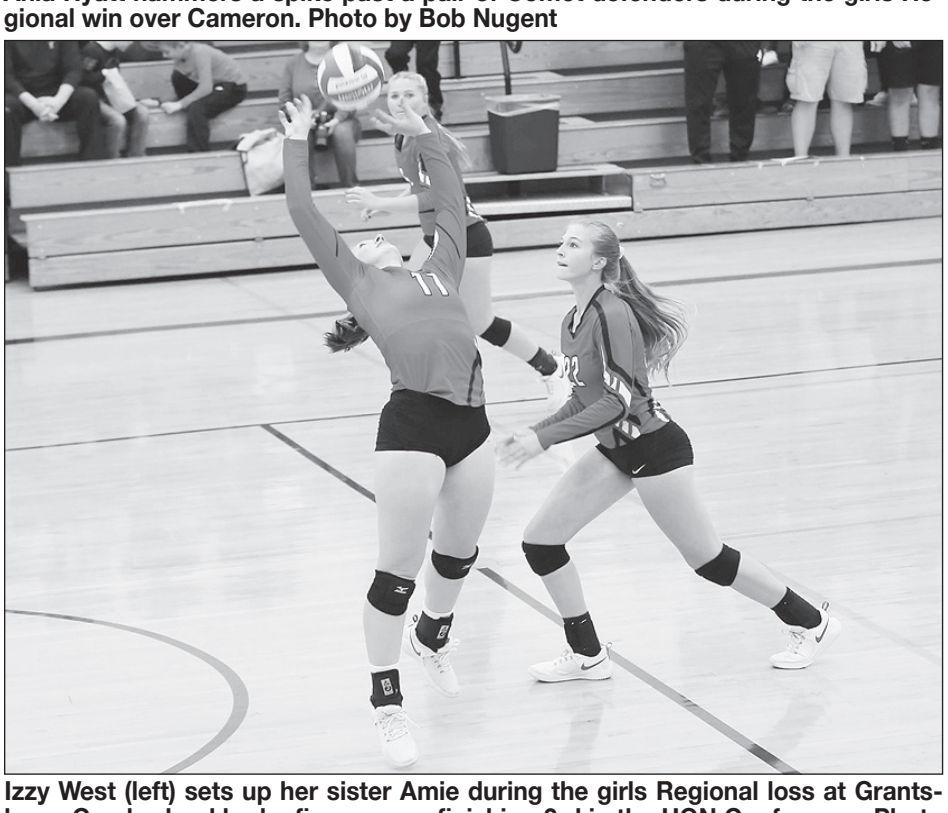

For the season, Hyatt had a team high 361 kills, Green led with 177 digs, and West had a team-leading 631 assists. Talbot was the teams top server, having 77 aces on the season. "I'll miss watching these girls play in what was a memorable season," concluded Olson.

An Outdoorsman's Journal

by Mark Walters

There is no place like HOME!

Hello friends,

This past week for a variety of reasons I simply could not leave home to do an an over night adventure. For this column I will write about the reality of being a single parent, and single income outdoor adventures writer.

My daughter Selina is a senior at Necedah High School and I have been raising kids for 25-years. One of the reasons that I could not leave this week was that she had her conference cross country meet at Cashton. There is no way that I was going to miss watching her run in her second to last race.

Ruby is Fire's 2.5 year-old-golden retriever pup, and is a non stop bundle of energy in our lives and full of love. I have written about my desire to have pups with Ruby, and casually but seriously searched for an excellent stud from hunting stock and an owner that I thought that I would enjoy working with.

Dave Robel is a carpenter from the Richland Center area and I met him at a boat ramp at Ferryville on September 2nd. Dave had a fine looking golden retriever in the back seat of his truck and his name is Tango.

Dave and I talked for the next month and agreed that when Ruby came into heat Tango would be the father of her first litter. Ruby came into heat this week and that is another reason that I have been distracted from my travels.

There is a very good chance that on or about December 20th a litter of pups will be born in my living room and Selina's wish of having puppies her senior year just might come true, if everything works out the puppies should make for a very cool Christmas.

As I think readers of this column realize, I live a very independent way of life that is different than anyone that I know. I earn a living writing, and I harvest just about everything from firewood to most of my own produce, eggs, beef, venison and fish.

Living this lifestyle on what has become a shoe string budget is getting tougher by the month. I honestly believe that 50-percent of what goes into my belly is grown on this property or harvested while on my adventures.

Right now I am attempting to put up as much firewood for the winter as possible and close out my gardens which means final harvesting and spreading manure on top of the gardens. Of all the years I have grown food this years harvests are the biggest, and there has been so much canning and freezing that I need for the lazy season called winter to arrive.

Speaking of winter, I was given permission to hunt geese in a friends harvested cornfield and did that on Sunday the 14th and Monday the 15th. Almost an inch of snow fell, I became really wet and the geese were on to me as I laid on the ground and watched the sky.

Perhaps the biggest part of this career that I have been doing for almost 30-years is the never ending packing and unpacking. In reality I have never completely finished packing or unpacking because the trips are never more than a week a way.

In front of my garage is my outdoor office and I spend a lot of hours out there gearing up or down, or doing maintenance on gear. This summer I said to heck with it, and built a 30x14 foot open sided shed that I can work in and do not have to worry about the next or last trips trailer or boat load of gear getting snowed or rained on or having to work in the snow or rain.

I finished my shed this week and I love what I built. One time I unknowingly had a 14-foot, 2x10 fall off the roof hit me squarely in the head and knock me out. When I woke up I did the right thing and went back to work.

Splitting and stacking firewood is part of many wood burners lives each fall.

In all honesty my friends with being a very active parent. The President of Kids And Mentors Outdoors, a hobby farmer and doing as much marketing as possible to keep this column alive, this year has kicked my you know what.

Like when the 2x10 hit me in the head I just have to get up and keep moving and think about how fortunate I am to have the job that I have.

If your looking for a pup from good stock get a hold of me!

Soccer Season Comes to an End in Barron

The Cumberland Soccer season came to an end last Thursday, with a 2-0 loss to Barron in a WIAA Regional game.

Barron scored once in each half to take home the victory. They would score their first goal early in the contest to build up some momentum, which they would keep the entire game.

"They scored on a takeaway and a shot that bounced off the near post and in the net. After the score we battled them pretty even the first forty-five minutes," said Coach BJ Brenna.

Unfortunately, The Bears would add on to their lead with an early second half score off a direct kick, following a Cumberland foul. This would be the final score in the contest.

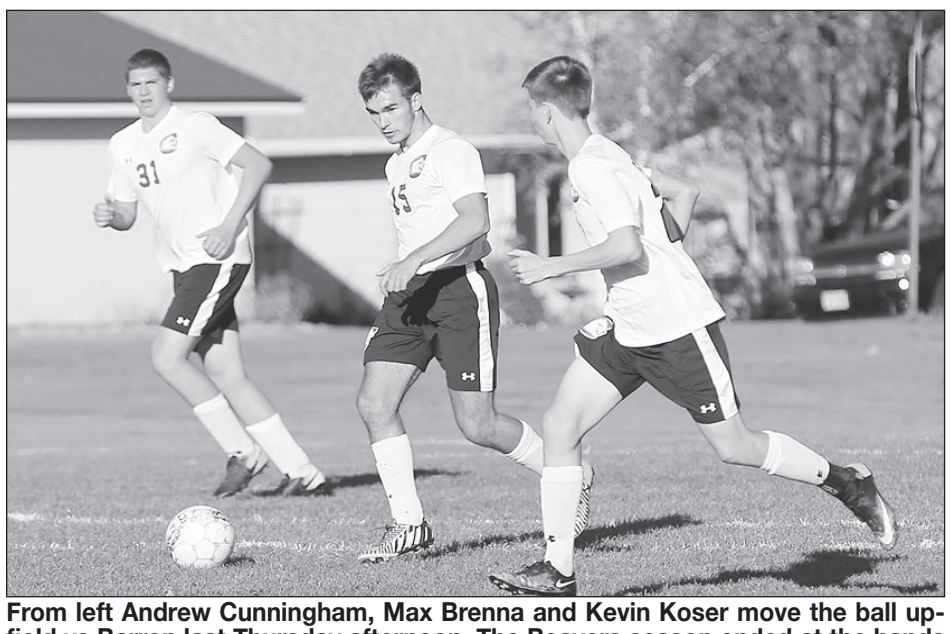

"We were prepared for a challenging match as this was the third time we played Barron this fall. We had our chances and possessed the ball quite well in the second half, keeping the pressure on them. We tried moving another forward up into the backline, but their keeper had a great night and we couldn't find the back of the net. We wish them all the best in the tournament moving forward," added Coach Brenna.

Both teams wore green tape on their shoes and the coaches wore green ribbons in the contest in support of finding missing Barron teenager Jayme Closs.

The Middle Border, meanwhile, named their All-Conference Team for 2018. Max Brenna was named as a 1st Team Defender, while Ethan Sandman was a member of the 2nd Team, also on defense. Brenna was a Honorable Mention choice last fall. The team will honor these two boys as well as the entire team at a season-ending Banquet on November 6th.

Natural Law and Confession
By: Pastor John Miels
St. Paul Lutheran Church, Cumberland

Natural law is open to everyone with reason and sense; the scientific study. That is, one need not be a Christian to notice that man is xy and woman is xx, and that marriage between a man and woman is written into our very existence. So even apart from scripture, one could say that marriage is necessary, a component of justice for the sake of children who come from one relationship, and one relationship alone, the coming together of one man and one woman. What does that mean for the bride of Christ?

Because natural law is open to all, is it somehow a lesser truth? The issue is pressing. Now, we might add that natural law is also attested to in the scriptures. But even more the issue matters because it is being denied all around us. When we confess natural law, we do so attesting to God as our creator, in whose image we are made. There can be no gospel apart from the confession that God has made us, originally in His image. Tellingly, Matthew begins "This is the book of Genesis," and John begins, well, in the beginning. If we abandon natural law, or ignore it, we are denying the God who has created us, Jesus who confesses Genesis as true, and who, in Christ, is bringing about our new creation.

Whether we are talking about homo sex marriage or the whole transgender matter, natural law is no small thing. Either we confess Christ through the natural law, or deny Him when confessed against the natural law. So,we may say that there are three articles in the creed, but they are not divided or sealed off from each other. In the story of creation, we see the seeds of our redemption. In the taking of Eve from Adam's side, we see Christ the Bridegroom, from whose side flows blood and water. In Creation of man in His image, we are propelled to Baptism, where we are created anew, entering into God's family, as children of our Heavenly Father. Apart from natural law, of course, it all falls apart, first in our denial and silence, and then in the very essence of the thing. Marriage of man and woman, their child in the womb, is ordained by God to be the confessing of Christ by those who follow Him. (John 8:42; 12:49, 14:15).

Chimney fire causes extensive damage to home

The Cumberland Fire Department was called to a house fire at the Farlow residence on 27 1/2 Avenue in Barronett, shortly before 1:00 a.m. on Sunday, October 21st.

The caller stated there was fire through the floor coming from the basement with one person still inside.

The first firefighter on scene came directly from his home and found everyone was now out of the house and the fire was rolling across the ceiling. He closed the door to limit the amount of air getting to the fire.

When the rest of the fire department arrived at 1:12 a.m. an attack was made on the fire and it was quickly extinguished. The investigation revealed that there had been a chimney fire and embers may have escaped the chimney and set some nearby combustibles on fire. The fire department cleared the scene at 3:30 a.m.

Damage to the home is estimated to be around $20,000. The home was not insured.

BARRONETT NEWS

By Judy Pieper

This is going to be a very busy week in our area! There will be lots of scary and fun things to do leading up to Halloween. First, the Barronett Dragons 4H Clubs' Haunted Trail will be open this Friday and Saturday, October 26th and 27th from 7:00 p.m. until 10:00 p.m. each day. Those brave enough to go on the trail can park at Thompson Mini Storage and catch a hayride to the trail. The trail goes through the dark forest and is surrounded by a murky swamp where guests will see a ghost ship. They have added a few attractions this year, so come on over and see it all, if you can keep your eyes open. 4-H Club members will also have hot chocolate, popcorn and dessert bars available. For more information, give 4-H Club leader, Peg Thompson, a call.

And, on Saturday, the Barronett Civic Club members will be hosting their annual kids Halloween party at the community center. The club members and volunteers have all kinds of fun things planned for your little ones. There are games, prizes, cake walks and lots and lots of food and treats. Dress your little ones in their cutest, or scariest, costumes and come on over. All children are welcome and must be accompanied by an adult. The event is free but, of course, donations are always welcome.

And remember, First Lutheran has their Trunk or Treat and brat feed on Halloween evening. In addition to the treats being handed out in the parking lot, there will be games and crafts inside the church for pre-K and grade school kids.

Jessica Farlow called on Sunday evening to tell me how impressed she and her family are by the quick response of Cumberland Volunteer Firefighters. Jessica said that sometime, late Saturday night, a fire started in her grandma's house. Jessica's son, Jimmy Mehalek, who now resides there, called it in. Remember now, this is in the middle of the night, and the firefighters were there so quickly that they were able to put the fire out before the house burned to the ground. She said that the Farlow family wold like to thank their neighbor, Ron Helstern, and the rest of the volunteer firefighters for their bravery in fighting fires and for their dedication to duty.

Our pumpkin carving party went very well again this year. The first little guests to arrive were twins, Kaitlynn and Jessica Holmen, and their mom, Jamie. Then Sharai Hefty and Gary Rahn. The rest of the guests were: Garett, Kandice and Kane Thon; Jim and Wrigley Marsh; Suzy and Miriah Lehmann; and Lynn Thon. We carved a dozen pumpkins and have eight left to carve this coming weekend. We were hoping Tru Lehmann could be with us, but she is such a little social butterfly that she already had other plans for the weekend. However, we are hoping to see her this coming weekend when we will be carving the rest of the pumpkins.

Oh, I almost forgot, Wrigley Mash visited us on Saturday and made a chocolate cake all by himself, with just a little bit of adult supervision. Anyway, he asked me to make a cake too, so we could have a contest to see which of us was the best baker, and we would let the people at the pumpkin carving party decide. I made a pineapple upside down cake, and I hate to admit this, but Wrigley won, hands down, with his delightful chocolate cake. Lots of people at the party asked him to make them a cake when their birthday comes. He is going to be a busy little boy, I'll tell you that for sure.

Delores (Zappa) Ytreus, formerly of Cumberland and now of Bellflower, California, called on Friday. She likes to keep up on the news from home, and while reading the Barronett News, she noticed that we had apples to give away. She said that she would love to have some apples from Barronett and asked if we would send some. I sent them out right away, so hopefully she received them on Monday. While we were talking I invited her to the Scandinavian Smorgasbord, but she said that, much as she would like to come, she wouldn't make it. We had a very nice chat, and I hope to hear from her again.

You know, of course, that I have to put in one more commercial message about the Scandinavian Smorgasbord-and I will again next week, so be prepared. It will be held on the first Sunday in November, the 4th, at the Barronett Community Center. We start serving at noon, and we will be there until 5:30 or until the food runs out. I'll let you know what is on the menu next week, but remember, it's a smorgasbord, so it's served buffet style and you can come back as many times as you want. Look for the yellow posters hanging around town and for the ad in this paper. We hope to see you there.

Our sympathy goes out to the family of Kay Theese, who passed away on Thursday, October 18th. Please keep Kay's family in your prayers as they go through this time of sadness.

That's it from Barronett this week. Hope to see you on the haunted trail and at the Halloween party. See you next time.

mas-tree lighting she has organized is about bringing people to town, and into downtown.

"I really just wanted to attract people from all over to come to Cumberland in the fall," she said. "So, my friend Sarah and I were discussing all kinds of ideas, then I settled in on the idea of making scarecrows. How fun it would be for Cumberland to show its creative side and display them in hopes that the word would get out and gather people of all ages and from all over to vote on the one they liked best. Seeing the smiles and hearing the excitement grow every year makes my heart sing."

Mine, too.

The scarecrow competition is infectious. Early last week, I sent an email to fellow members of the arts council board asking whether we should assemble a scarecrow in front of the arts center that promotes our upcoming play, "Packer Fans from Outer Space." The next day, Dave Evenson and Al Bock were assembling a flying saucer while Lori Bock worked with Ann and me to turn the ETC mannequin into an alien that points at our marquee.

Ours is No. 50 in the Cumberland Scarecrow Contest.

Thanks, Stacy, for what you do for our downtown, in addition to operating two successful businesses. Maybe, in your spare time, you could organize a Halloween parade.

Boys & Girls Clubs of Barron County Director announces departure

After seven years at the helm of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Barron County, community leader Deanna Aubart announced she is leaving the Club to start her own business, Dream Ship Play & Learning Center, a therapy center benefitting children with autism. The center, set to open at the beginning of 2019, will support young children with autism spectrum disorder as they work on individual goals associated with communication, life skills, and social skills. Deanna will serve as the business manager at the company and will be joined by her business partner, Sara Brunclik.

"I will always treasure the time I have spent at the Club. It will be extremely hard to leave an organization with such a profound mission. I have enjoyed the privilege of being a part of an organization that impacts so many of Barron County's youth and families." Aubart stated. "The Club is in a great place right now and after nearly seven years, it's the right time for me to pass the torch to the next leader. "

Deanna has worked diligently over the years to raise funds for the Club and advocate for issues that help support youth in Barron County. Aubart credits the success of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Barron County to the dedicated staff that carry out the heart of their mission, a community that cares deeply about their youth, and a strong board of directors that works tirelessly to raise the funds for the organization.

"We thank Deanna for her tireless work on making Barron County a great and safe environment for kids." said Polly Wolner, the Boys & Girls Clubs of Barron County board chair. "The board and I are working with BGC leadership to ensure a smooth transition for our members, their families, our staff, our community partners and all of our important stakeholders."

The search of Aubart's replacement will begin immediately. They hope to have a new director in place by Jan 1. The hiring qualifications include a bachelor's degree from an accredited university and experience in youth development, management, leadership, budgeting and fundraising.
