Public Notification Alert: Potential COVID-19 exposure

Barron County Public Health is alerting community members who may have been at risk for exposure to COVID-19. The potential exposure happened at the following location during the date and time listed.

- Nancy's Northside Café (Rice Lake); October 23rd from 6:00 AM to 7:00 AM

If you were at this location during date and time listed AND you have any symptoms of COVID-19, please stay home and contact your local clinic to be tested. Anyone who was at the location during the date and time listed, and is NOT experiencing symptoms should watch for any signs of illness for the next two weeks. If you start to feel sick or have any symptoms in the next 14 days, please stay home and contact your doctor to get tested.

Symptoms of COVID-19 include: cough, fever, sore throat, headache, body or muscle aches, chills, fatigue, diarrhea, vomiting, or new loss of taste or smell.

A public notification is issued is when someone that tested positive for COVID-19 was at a location while symptomatic but before test results were known, AND there is no way to identify all of the people they came into contact with. The potential exposure means that anyone that was there during the time frame may have been exposed. We issue an alert to let people know they may have been exposed and to look for others who may now be sick as well.

Appearing on this list does not mean the establishment did something wrong. It also does not mean the establishment should be closed. All establishments are contacted before being listed and are given guidance on how to reduce future risk to staff and customers.

Public Health is asking everyone's help to slow the spread of COVID-19 in Barron County. Any symptoms of illness or worsening of allergy symptoms, especially if allergies are not relieved by over the counter medications should be considered suspect COVID-19. Please stay home and contact your doctor to be tested.

Bob Paffel retires from Cumberland Fire District

After just over 43 years of service to the community, Bob Paffel has decided to retire. Bob and his wife Darlene have found they like Florida winters better than ours, so his availability to respond to calls has become very limited.

Being that he will be gone by the time the annual awards banquet is held, Bob was presented with his service award at the regular meeting of the department held on October 26th. Pictured with Bob is his son Brian who himself is a 24 year member of the department.

The officers, firefighters and the board of directors of the Cumberland Fire District extend our sincere gratitude to Bob for his many years of selfless service to the district and the community.

Thank you for your service!

‘Indian winter’ in ’20-‘21’ By Larry Werner

It looks like we’re getting a bit of Indian summer - warmish fall days - after a few weeks of whatever you call an October that feels more like December with snowstorms and below-freezing high temperatures.

As I’ve mentioned before, Ann and I are being very careful during this pandemic. Public-health officials say old folks with certain conditions should avoid sharing indoor spaces with others, even if those others are our children and grandchildren. The virus, they say, can hang in the indoor air waiting for us to breathe it in.

As the COVID numbers in Wisconsin reach levels we haven’t seen since the pandemic began, there’s talk of closing bars and restaurants again, or at least cutting back to 25 percent of capacity. Since we’re scared, we’ve avoided dining in restaurants, instead picking up takeout food and eating with friends in garages with the doors open so air circulates, with some small heaters to keep us reasonably warm.

That’s worked on some of the cold days we had in October, but what will we do in January?

Wouldn’t it be nice if we had a winter without below-zero temps? We’ll call it “Indian winter.”

If it gets no colder than, say, 20, we should be able to have dinner parties in our garage, or in the garages of friends.

Or we could have “zoom dinners,” which is what we plan to do for Thanksgiving, and perhaps Christmas. That’s becoming a thing, with people preparing meals in their own homes, then connecting with video-conference technology to family members for dinner conversation. But Zoom isn’t a great substitute for breaking bread with family and friends.

So we’ll have outdoor dinners, or garage dinners. One set of friends has invested in electric heaters mounted above card tables, and another couple we know is awaiting the delivery of a propane heater for their garage. I’m thinking of getting one of those.

In the Twin Cities, a number of restaurants are continuing outdoor dining with patio heaters. But what about those windy days? Heaters won’t keep you warm when a 30-mile wind is blowing from the north.

Maybe the pandemic presents a business opportunity for people with pole barns that could be rented out for picnics, or tents with side panels that could be pulled down on the windward side, or empty warehouses.

I have to admit that there are times I’m tempted to throw caution to the wind and resume living as we used to — eating in restaurants, having friends in for meals and games of Mexican Train, celebrating the holidays in the homes of our children. Then, I heard about a friend whose children spent the weekend at her home and learned after that visit they had COVID.

Ann and I dropped off Halloween treats at the homes of our grandchildren on Friday. It was great seeing them outside for a short time. As we drove away, we didn’t talk much, thinking longingly about the time before COVID, nights when we stayed with them while their parents had a night out, nights when we tucked them into their beds with grandparent hugs that we haven’t felt in nine months.

Sometimes, I think bears have the right idea: sleeping through the winter, waking in spring, when, we hope, the pandemic is over. But I don’t think humans are built to hibernate for the winter.

So we’ll keep our distance from others, wear masks when we are out in public, gather outdoors and in garages and avoid family gatherings during the upcoming holidays, hard as that is.

I saw something on Facebook recently that says it well: “We isolate now so when we gather again, no one is missing.”

Barronett News

By Judy Pieper

The members of Barronett Lutheran Church were so happy to be able to attend Sunday morning worship inside the church for the first time in months this past Sunday. Pastor Todd had taped off every other pew, had masks and hand sanitizer in the back for those who did not have their own, had the bread for communion in plastic baggies in the back of the church so we could pick it up before we sat down – I think he thought of everything. Geri Pittman played the hymns, but instead of singing we read the words to ourselves to keep from spreading any germs. We spread the peace by greeting others from where we sat instead of shaking hands as we used to do. Let me tell you, it was almost like going home again to be able to sit in church and listen to the word. I hope things continue to go well so that we can keep holding Sunday services in the church.

Imagine a drumroll here – Alec Adams proposed to the light of his life, Anna Waterman, by ordering a pizza with the words “will you marry me” written out in, I think, pepperoni. What a romantic guy!! Maybe pizza is Anna’s second favorite thing – the first being Alec, of course. The couple have decided on July 9, 2022 as the date for their wedding. Congratulations you to. We wish you only happiness in the future.

Pat Sweet was able to connect with an old friend, Vivian Bergman, this past week. Pat and Vivian had worked together at the Saron House many years ago when Ted Haag owned it. The Saron House was taken down quite a long time ago when highway 53 became an interstate. Anyway, Pat said that she was glad that she and Vivian reconnected, and that they had a very nice phone conversation.

Judy Norton sent me an e-mail to share with you. I’m sure it will be of interest to anyone who has loved ones interred at Lakeside Cemetery. It goes like this:

Barronett Lakeside Cemetery is in need of financial support for ongoing maintenance. Historically the Cemetery Fund generated income from the sale of plots, as well as interest earned from the bank. As we all know, no one is making money on bank interest anymore, and plot sales are fewer and fewer. Therefore, the fund is being depleted.

To maintain the beautiful landscape at Barronett Lakeside Cemetery, we need donations from families of loved ones buried in our cemetery, or from those who plan to make Lakeside Cemetery their final resting place.

If you would like to make a donation, please send it to: Barronett Lakeside Cemetery, c/o Colleen Elmberg – Secretary/Treasurer, PO Box 114, Barronett, WI 54813. Please be certain to include your name and address so that we can properly thank you for your support. For those interested in purchasing a plot, please contact John Sweet. Hopefully we can all enjoy the beauty of Barronett Lakeside Cemetery for generations to come.

I personally am so glad that Judy brought this to our attention. It never occurred to me that it takes a lot of work and money to keep our cemetery looking beautiful.

Terry Goodrich called about a city-slicker friend of his from Chicago. This person is now living in our area but hasn’t quite adapted to all our country ways yet. For one thing, he dislikes country music – calls it “cow pie” music. And, for another, he doesn’t know much about farming. Case in point: Terry was talking about his life as a youngster on the farm and mentioned that one of his jobs was stripping cows. The look on the friend’s face was priceless as he asked, “How do you strip a cow?” Terry told me that he really wanted to say that you have to dress her first but refrained and the country bumpkin explained it to his city slicker friend.

In case you were not lucky enough to grow up on a farm in the ‘50’s, I am going to tell you what it is too. It was one of my jobs when we lived on the farm in Campia. After Dad removed the milking machine from the cow, it was the kids’ job to squeeze out the last of her milk into a pail. That was called stripping. So now you know.

By the time you read this the election will be over!! One nice thing, maybe the robo calls telling us who to vote for will stop. And, we all know that whichever candidate wins, our country will still be the best place to live, work and raise a family. Don’t worry, everything will be back to normal soon – I hope.

That’s about it from Barronett this week. Hope you voted. Stay safe, and I’ll see you next week.

Opinion

By Craig Bucher

It is Monday afternoon and by the time most of you read this we will have a pretty good idea of just who will be our next president. It has been a hard fought campaign filled with discord revealing the deep divide between the citizens of this country. For over 250 years we have been able to solve our differences through listening to the other side and then compromising. Nobody gets a “whole loaf” but everybody gets some of what they want. Now it seems that compromise is a dirty word and everybody retreats to their prepared positions and refuses to listen to the other guy or to admit that other guys position might just have some merit. I hope we can begin a movement toward compromise and toward once against becoming the “United States of America. Yelling, shouting, and poking fun of the other guy just isn’t very profitable. It seems to me that an election, to choose a leader every four years, is also a chance for us to start over, still searching to move closer towards establishing a “more perfect union.” Here is, once again, that opportunity. I hope we don’t “blow” it.

With the Vikings win over the Packers this past weekend the old adage - “Every dog has his day” is once more established as truthful. The Vikings are just not very good this year and apparently neither are the Packers. The Packers dominated the Vikings in the opening game of the season and the Vikings returned the favor last Sunday. I don’t think either team should rush out to buy Super Bowl tickets. The Vikings only have a chance to win when the offensive line has a good game and when Cook can play which seems to be, because of injuries, every other game. The Packers only have a chance when Rodgers is hitting on all cylinders as their running game is only fair at best. This week, the Vikings will probably take the week off and lose to the hapless Lions. The Packers will have a tough time avoiding their second loss in a row as they tangle with the tough 49ers on Thursday night.

SEE YOU NEXT WEEK!

Here are science and tech priorities that will face the next president

By Tom Still

MADISON, I: No matter who wins Nov. 3, the next president of the United States will have plenty on his “to-do” list when it comes to science and technology initiatives. At the risk of injecting actual policy issues into the campaign with only days remaining, here are some examples:

Tamp down on COVID-19 while girding for what’s next: With nearly 150 vaccine candidates in the pipeline, the odds are strong that someone will come up with a vaccine that is roughly 50 percent effective. Will skeptical people trust it? Who gets it first? Will it offer long-term protection or, like most other vaccines, require regular boosters? Beyond the vaccine quest is the goal of coming up with therapeutics that can save lives and limit suffering once people get sick, which would rebuild confidence among people who are scared to venture out.

Longer term, the United States can’t get caught short again if other viruses or threats such as growing antibiotic resistance take the place of the coronavirus. That brings me to...

Restore and “reshore” essential parts of the preparedness chain. Make sure the federal pandemic preparedness office, which began to wind down in 2017, has what it needs to function. Rebuild the supply chain for personal protective equipment so that America isn’t so reliant on other nations. Listen to the experts when they sound alarms. No one wants to panic people; just give them straight information that can help them and their families.

Embrace a national solution to data privacy. The United States was a leader in data privacy laws decades ago, but not enough is being done at the federal level today to prevent personal information from being misused. The European Union’s General Data Protection Regulation aims to harmonize privacy laws across the EU, but critics say it continues practices that have long stifled innovation in Europe. China’s data privacy protocol is even more far-reaching and, some argue, even dangerous, given fears of cyber-snooping on U.S. tech companies.

The next president and Congress should adopt federal standards that would pre-empt 50 different state privacy laws, an outcome that would make a mess of interstate commerce while confusing consumers.

Extend the reach of competitive broadband: There may never be 100 percent internet coverage in America because too many people live in remote places and prefer to do so. However, many rural communities (and a few digital deserts in big cities) don’t have competitive choices for downloading and uploading data. The federal government should consider a full range of internet technologies, not just expensive optic fiber, so that more people can get the service they need to connect with commerce, schools and healthcare.

Build on agreements that enhance digital trade: A lot of people believed the North American Free Trade Agreement has outlived its usefulness after 25 years, so the U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement was passed to take its place. That largely bipartisan trade deal can be good for traditional exporters, but also tech-related equipment, products and services. Directly and indirectly, Wisconsin relies on trade. The next president and Congress should make sure USMCA works as envisioned. While they’re at it, let’s figure out a verifiable trade relationship with China.

Pass the Endless Frontier Act: There is already bipartisan support for “The Endless Frontier Act,” (H.R. 6978 and S.3832), which would spend up to $100 billion over five years to boost science and technology research, revive American manufacturing and create innovation hubs nationwide.

The bill would direct the National Science Foundation to focus on 10 areas viewed as most important to American security and prosperity. They are: artificial intelligence and machine learning; high-performance computing, semiconductors and advanced computer hardware; quantum computing; robotics, automation and advanced manufacturing; natural and man-made disaster prevention; advanced communications; biotechnology genomics and synthetic biology; advanced energy technology; cybersecurity, data storage and data management; and materials science and engineering.

The act envisions partnerships between universities, government and industry, with 10 interdisciplinary research hubs to transfer science and technology into innovative goods and services while boosting metro, state and regional economies.

The Endless Frontier Act is a big vision involving some big bucks, but it’s worth the debate ... especially if you believe the next four years are critical to putting the U.S. economy back on track for 21st century primacy.

Still is president of the Wisconsin Technology Council. He can be reached at tstill@wisconsintechcouncil.com

A Look Back

10 Years Ago November 10, 2010

Five Cumberland football players have been named to the 2010 HON All-Conference team. Brady Rose and Adam Bielmeier were named First Team, Sam Clark was named Second Team, and Cody Morgan and Michael Dorry were named as Honorable Mention linemen.

On Saturday, November 6, at approximately 4:44 p.m., the Cumberland Fire Department was called out to a mobile home on fire in Barronett. This is the same residence that had two mobile homes burn on October 31st. The fires seemed suspicious. The Sheriff’s Department is investigating to see if these fires are connected.

20 Years Ago November 8, 2000

Luke Voshell, Cumberland Senior tight end, has been named to the WFCANorthwest All-Region football team. Voshell led the Beavers with 16 catches, good for 375 yards. Voshell was also an important blocker in the Beavers Wing-T offense which rushed for over 2200 yards this past season.

30 Years Ago November 7, 1990

John Ranallo is new to the girls basketball coach position at Cumberland.

Ranallo is a 1971 graduate of Cumberland High School, attended The University of River Falls and teaches art at the high school. He also serves as a freshman football coach.

Cumberland became the home of a state champion last Saturday when eight year old Jay Gagner won the Punt, Pass, and Kick state championship held in Green Bay. Gagner was one of 15 contestants in his age group that got sent to Green Bay.

40 Years Ago November 5, 1980

An open house will be held at Cumberland Memorial Hospital from 2:00-4:30 p.m., this Sunday to observe the completion of a new $2 million addition. The new addition runs along the east end of the hospital property and connects to the old east wing of the hospital. The addition contains 20 new patient rooms and makes it possible for the entire 44 bed unit to have all private rooms.

The Cumberland Girls Volleyball Team concluded its regular season play with a convincing 15-7, 15-5 shut out of the girls from Frederic. The win over Frederic gave the Beaver girls a 5-5 record.

A wind storm early Tuesday morning toppled the steeple at First Lutheran Church on Cumberland’s west side. The wind, which was accompanied by a heavy rain, took the metal tower, which was topped with a cross, and dropped it near the main entrance on the building’s west side.

October was the wettest on record here. A total of 7.18 inches was recorded at Cumberland Municipal Utility, which breaks the old record of 6.34 inches set in 1950. The average for October is just 1.87 inches, so we have had about four times as much moisture as usual this past month.

The next season they moved up a notch by claiming third in the Middle Border Conference.

Sergeant Steffen with the Village of Cameron Police Department reports on that on August 31, 2020, at approximately 5:15 p.m., he was notified by the Barron County Sheriff's Department that a vehicle had struck a pole near Polar Avenue and had taken off east bound. Sergeant Steffen reports that the caller advised that the vehicle which struck the pole was a green Chevrolet Trailblazer that did not have a license plate.

Sergeant Steffen reports he responded to the area and eventually made contact with the reporting party, who advised him that a male had been driving a green Trailblazer at a high rate of speed from the very west end of Poplar Avenue past her house. Sergeant Steffen reports the reporting party stated she heard screeching tires, went to the roadway, and saw the vehicle strike a utility pole in her neighbor's yard before driving back onto the street and taking off at a high rate of speed.

Sergeant Steffen reports that as he was gathering information about the event, a tan four-door sedan drove past his location, and the reporting party advised that the sedan had been following the suspect vehicle. Sergeant Steffen reports he eventually made contact with that vehicle and made contact with the driver.

Sergeant Steffen reports he asked the driver if she knew who was operating the vehicle, and she advised that it was her fiancé, Blihovde. Sergeant Steffen reports he asked the female what she saw, and she stated that she didn't see it happen and just heard tires screeching. Sergeant Steffen reports the female stated that she and Blihovde got into an argument because he was "really drunk."

Sergeant Steffen reports the female stated that they reside together, and she was trying to take their child and leave when Blihovde became angry, tried taking the child from her, and then got into the Trailblazer and left.

Sergeant Steffen reports that a short time later, he met with Deputy Hulback, of the Barron County Sheriff's Office, and the male in the driver's seat of the green Trailblazer without a license plate on it. Sergeant Steffen reports he eventually identified the subject verbally as Blihovde.

Sergeant Steffen reports he asked Blihovde what he had been drinking that day, as Sergeant Steffen could smell an odor of intoxicants on Blihovde's breath. Sergeant Steffen reports Blihovde stated, "just a few beers, they were six-percenters."

Sergeant Steffen reports he eventually administered field sobriety tests to Blihovde. Sergeant Steffen reports he also administered the horizontal gaze nystagmus test, and observed six clues. Sergeant Steffen reports he also administered the walk and turn test and observed three clues. Sergeant Steffen reports he administered the one leg stand test, and Blihovde got caught up counting, and raised his arms slightly, but performed the test fairly well.

Sergeant Steffen reports he eventually transported Blihovde to the Mayo Hospital in Barron, where his blood was drawn for further testing. Sergeant Steffen reports that on September 29, he received the results of the blood test, which indicated that Blihovde had a blood alcohol concentration of .159.

If convicted for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence, Blihovde may be fined not less than $350 nor more than $1100, and imprisoned not more than six months. For operating a motor vehicle with prohibited alcohol concentration, he may be fined not less than $350, nor more than $1100, and imprisoned not more than five days and six months. For disorderly conduct and domestic abuse, he may be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than 90 days or both. His court hearing is scheduled for December 16, 2020.

Woman Sexually Assaulted by Webster Man in Washburn County

Trent T. Trepania, 26, of Webster, is being charged with Class C Felony Second Degree Sexual Assault/use of force, Class C Felony Attempt Second Degree Sexual Assault/use of force, three counts of Class H Felony Bail Jumping, and one count of misdemeanor bail jumping.

On August 24, 2020, the Spooner Police Department responded to a report of a woman being sexually assaulted. Officers made contact with the female, who was visibly upset, crying, shaking, and having difficulty breathing.

Officers were advised that the assault had occurred in the garage of a residence in the city of Spooner. The victim provided a description of the male who allegedly committed the sexual assault.

The victim went on to say that when she entered the garage, the suspect grabbed her, and pulled down her pants and underclothes. He then allegedly sexually assaulted her, while she repeatedly said, "no" and "stop." The victim stated that she could not get away from him and that she felt helpless.

When officers arrived at the residence, they located a male matching the description given by the victim.

According to the criminal complaint, officers attempted to speak with the suspect Trent Trepania, however, he declined to answer any questions without an attorney present. Officers informed Trepania that he was being taken into custody for sexual assault.

Trepania stated repeatedly that he did not sexually assault anyone, and went on to say that he had a right to defend himself against anyone, even the police. Officers advised Trepania that if he attempted to run, Spooner Police K-9 would be brought out of the squad car.

Trepania cooperated with the arrest and was placed in the squad car, where he began banging his head against the plexiglass divider. He was transported to the Washburn County Jail, where he struck his head against the floor of the cell, resulting in transportation to the Shell Lake Hospital for medical care.

On August 27, at a bail bond hearing, the court ordered a $2,500 cash bond for Trepania.

On October 5, Trepania appeared from the Washburn County Jail for an initial appearance hearing on the sexual assault charges and was scheduled to appear again on October 28, 2020.

This week: Chicago's Great Fire: The Destruction and Resurrection of an Iconic American City by Carl Smith

c. 2020, Atlantic Monthly Press • $28 • 374 pages

You were not to blame. Very clearly, you didn't do it. You were there, of course, but though everybody seems to be pointing fingers, you honestly had nothing to do with it. It wasn't your fault. And in the new book "Chicago's Great Fire" by Carl Smith, the cow was innocent, too.

On Sunday morning, October 8, 1871, Fire Chief Marshall Robert Williams went to bed, exhausted. For months, the weather in his Chicago hometown had been warm and dry with not much rain since mid-summer, and everything was "poised to burn." Williams had just finished a long shift, fighting more than twenty fires caused by mischief, carelessness, or arson, and he had a bad feeling about the night to come.

A few hours later, in a part of town filled with working-class immigrants in small, crowded shacks, Catherine O'Leary finished her chores and joined her husband in bed. She owned a small dairy operation within city limits, and her contribution to her household was important. Catherine arose every morning at four to milk her cows, and she was tired.

The O'Learys fell asleep, but not for long. Around 9 o'clock, neighbor Daniel Sullivan spotted flames in the O'Leary's barn, and he quickly woke the family. Sullivan then sprinted to a fire alarm many blocks away, tripped it, and returned to help.

For some reason, however, the alarm was ignored. Within minutes, sparks leapt from the O'Leary's barn to nearby homes and spread to outbuildings. Dry wood disintegrated, burning sawdust swirled and ignited, and fire raged out of control, an inferno that sent Chicagoans scrambling for green space and waterfront. Carrying their most precious belongings on their backs, the wealthy tried to save their artwork, the poor tried to save their cookpots, officials tried to save important documents, and Chicago burned...

It's almost impossible to read the first half of "Chicago's Great Fire" without feeling your heart pound. Indeed, you can practically hear ominous music beneath author Carl Smith's narrative, and though you know there's a near-literal Phoenix-from-the-ashes rising sooner or later, you also know there's lots of story left.

Part of the appeal of its telling is in the authenticity here, through a wide variety of sources, including the words of Chicagoans of all ages. This comes mostly in quaintly florid Victorian-era prose that's gut-wrenchingly poignant, and wonderful as a storytelling tool. Also: more heart-pounding. More nail-biting.

Once you get past the immediacy of the fire, a clean-up begins in both reality and story. For modern residents and fans alike, but also for lovers of old buildings, the latter half of this book is fascinating in its account of the efforts to re-make Chicago, and to make sure that disasters like this never happen again.

Though you know what happened that night by Lake Michigan – and in Peshtigo, Wisconsin, at the very same time – there are many surprises left inside "Chicago's Great Fire," including a cow that didn't do a thing. And if you miss that story, you have no one to blame but yourself.

* * *

Also be sure to check out "Fire in Paradise: An American Tragedy" by Alastair Gee and Dani Anguiano, a book a more modern-day inferno in Paradise, California; and "A Furious Sky: The Five-Hundred-Year History of America's Hurricanes" by Eric Jay Dolin, a book about hurricanes on our shores.

Cumberland Football Team Hammers Spooner; 2020 HON Champs

The Cumberland Beavers are 2020 Conference Football Champions. It comes following the Beavers 48-6 victory over the Spooner Rails last Saturday afternoon in Cumberland. The win gives the Beavers an overall record of 6 and 0 and their first Conference Title since 2012 and their sixth Championship since 1930.

The Beavers would have been scheduled to finish up HON play next Friday against Barron, but the game has been canceled following health issues in Barron. Cumberland will instead travel to Durand for a Friday night game at 7:00. The next game will be November 13, when the WIAA will hold the first of two levels of Playoffs this fall. These two levels will end the adjusted schedule of the WIAA due to the Covid-19 virus.

“The feeling of being able to celebrate a Conference Championship at home in front of our great fans and community was amazing. As a coach it is great to see hard working kids get rewarded,” said Coach Corey Berghammer.

As has been their pattern, the Beavers left little doubt in the outcome of Saturday’s game, by scoring 14 first quarter points and building a 36-0 lead by halftime. Using a short passing attack and allowing the receivers to run with the ball was once again the key to the Cumberland offense.

The defense and special teams were also big contributors to the victory. “Spooner is extremely well coached and I thought our defense and special teams played very well on Saturday,” said Coach Berghammer.

Punter Lucas Anderson had another solid game, including one punt that pinned the Rails back on their own three yard line. He would punt twice in the game for a 46-yard average.

Defensively, the team stuffed the Rails run dominated offense, holding them to 70 yards rushing in 36 attempts. Linebackers Isaac Runstrom and Travis Runstrom made some big hits, while linemen like Milan Monchilovich and Mike Cecka made things tough up front. Runstrom led the team with 13 tackles, while Runberg added eight tackles and Carter Bickle seven. Gavin Jarchow, meanwhile, grabbed an interception on one of the seven passes Spooner tried in the contest.

Offensively, the Beavers had numerous short fields due to their dominating defense. The team would pass for 153 yards and rush for 174 more in the game.

Quarterback Maddux Allen completed 17 of 21 passes for 147 yards and two scores. Many were of the shovel pass variety with the talented group Cumberland receivers gaining access to the flat area where there were limited defenders. On the Conference season, Allen completed an amazing 100 of 118 passes for 12 touchdowns.

Senior receiver/running back Jack Martens had another excellent game with 10 receptions for 86 yards. He has 60 receptions on the year for 708 yards and 10 touchdowns. He added two touchdowns on the ground, despite rushing for one yard in three attempts, often from the wildcard formation. His great versatility and athleticism makes him very tough to defend for Cumberland opponents.

DaShaun Ames added four receptions for 13 yards, while Sam Schradle caught two balls for 42 yards and a score. Other touchdown receptions came from Runberg and Ed Chafer, who caught a 6-yard strike from backup quarterback Dave Olson in the second half.

Schradle added a nice game rushing, where he put up 55 yards in seven attempts. Riley Otto added 41 yards in five attempts, while Drew Griffith had a long 44-yard run in the second half. Allen and Donovan Ehman contributed touchdown runs.

In the six Conference games, the Beavers averaged 47.6 points per game, while giving up 7.3 per contest in a dominating display of football. For 12 excellent seniors and the rest of the team, they left no doubt who the best team in the HON was this fall.

Nice Buck!

Matthew Muench shot this beautiful 9 pt buck! The buck dressed out at 216 pounds. Congratulations Matthew!

An Outdoorsman's Journal

The Duck Hunt that Was Not!

Hello friends,

For about two months I have been fantasizing about living out of a canoe on Green Bay and paddle trolling for musky and walleye, and duck hunting while living in hideout camps wherever my day ended.

Twenty four hours before I left for "fantasy land", I received a phone call from my life long buddy Doug Cibulka who I have traveled in the outdoors with chasing everything from salmon out of a canoe to black bear and of course deer camp. Doug was going to be on Green Bay the same days as me and staying at a motel.

I passed on the motel, but we made a plan to hunt together as well as fish each day.

Friday, October 23rd

High 52, low 31

Four inches of cold, wind driven rain fell over the last 24 hours and that put a one-day delay on this trip and very much so muddied up the waters. Another interesting development is that at least one mouse is dead somewhere in my truck and the smell was powerful for the two-hour drive. Doug and I met at a public landing near Cat Island and the adventure would not end until we said goodbye 52 hours later. I have to be vague as a ton happened and I only have so much space.

First, we had an idea where I would build my camp and I wanted it private. We towed my canoe and gear behind Doug's 17.5 deep v, Aluma Craft which is pushed by a 70hp Yamaha. I would soon learn that this is a much "deeper boat" boat than I thought.

Camp is built, so Doug and I take his rig and my rig and go looking for a spot to hunt ducks. It is very windy, and we are in an excellent mood. We find a point that is holding some mallards and bufflehead and set out decoys and the hunt was on. Long story short, we got some shots and missed but had very high hopes for the morning hunt. I paddled to camp;

Doug headed to the launch.

Saturday, October 24th

High 50, low 28

About as crazy a day as you will get! I am up at 3:00, paddle to my spot and have neighbors, they seem cool. I hang out in my canoe in 6 inches of water until 5, Doug arrives, and the bay has dropped a full eight inches, where my canoe was, is now a sandbar.

Daybreak comes and we are aware that we are going to get some incredible waterfowl shooting. Daybreak passed and we do not come close to getting a shot. Meanwhile from my view, Doug's boat which is about 300-yards away looks like it is on dry land. At 8:30 we take a walk, and our worst nightmares are reality, a ton of boat, motor and batteries are on dry land. The gail force northeast winds that flooded the bay have switched to the west and drained it.

It was a horrible hour of our lives, we dig under the boat with feet and paddles, push the boat two inches repeat the process! It was almost too much for the mind and body. Long story short we got her to float.

We decide to go exploring, I find a drake red head that someone had lost. We find "duck paradise" and are well aware that we are "the best duck hunters on earth".

Dark comes, I have not had a shot and been on the water for 15-hours. We hear a cry for help about four hundred yards away. Doug cannot get to the guy with his 500-ton ship. I paddle my canoe to him well aware that I am losing my daylight, and finding camp which is not where we are, is gonna be an issue.

Our new friend is Chris Kennedy, formally of the Green Bay area now Milwaukee. Chris has a Lund "Alaskan" which is an awesome rig. Chris has a problem; the Alaskan is 12 inches above water and not going anywhere.

I make a call to Coast Guard "General" Doug

It was a physical task getting Doug Cibulka's boat to water!

Due to several years of high water, shoreline erosion is having a devastating effect on Long Tail Point.

Cibulka for help. Chris and I waded with the canoe to deep water and my pals take off in the night.

I begin the paddle to "Camp where the heck are Ya!" I cannot find it for 1.5 hours and have serious concerns about running the energy out of my flood light. I find camp, I am a hero, yay me!

The following day we trolled for musky and wall-eye, we had zero action, there were ducks everywhere and when I got to my truck, five billion red wing black birds had been using it for bombing practice while roosting in the tree above for the last two nights.

Long story short, every fantasy does not become reality! Sunset

The league will officially become the HON next year when Ashland joins the Conference. Cumberland finished third this year at 5-3-2, behind undefeated Barron and second place Unity/St. Croix Falls. Barron defeated Cumberland in the WIAA Regional Final, 2-1, but then fell to the Arcadia Raiders by the same score. Arcadia earned a WIAA State Tournament appearance after defeating Columbus Catholic 4-1 in the Sectional Final. Gaining First team berths were Midfielder Tanner Johnson and Defender, Andrew Cunningham. Johnson was a consistent offensive threat and scorer for the Beavers while Cunningham led a strong defense. The Beavers also placed three team members on the Second Team in Senior Forward Chase Lussier, Junior Midfielder Noah Sellent, and Senior Goalkeeper Matthew Friess. Honorable Mention berths went to Freshman Ryan Lundmark and Senior Mason Bohn. OBITUARIES

Jean P. Algeo

Jean P. (Nelson) Algeo, 97, passed away peacefully in the evening of October 31, 2020 at Cumberland Care and Rehab. She was born on October 13, 1923 to John C. and Olga Nelson in the Section 10 area of Cumberland. She attended Section 10 School through 8th grade, and graduated from Cumberland High School in 1941. She graduated from Barron County Normal School and UW-River Falls; she taught several years at country schools, around Cumberland, and at Clear Lake Elementary and Chetek Elementary before marriage. Jean married Stephen Algeo on August 22, 1949, his birthday.

She and Steve enjoyed many trips out west and Canada for bird hunting, making lifelong friends from these trips. They also enjoyed yearly trips to Milwaukee and Chicago for dental conventions. Jean was an avid bridge player, belonging to several bridge clubs. She was an accomplished cook and baker, making many tasty treats for family, friends, and neighbors. Her family and her church family were very important in her life. She sang in the First Lutheran Church Choir for almost 50 years, and was active with Church Women. She taught Sunday school for many years and always supported the church and its many activities.

Jean went back to UW-River Falls after Steve died in 1969 and completed her Bachelor's Degree so she could continue to teach. She taught at Shell Lake Elementary School for nine years before becoming the Cumberland Senior Citizen Director and Nutrition Coordinator for almost 20 years.

Jean is survived by her daughters Peg (Clif) Beyer, Ann Algeo, and daughter in law Malissa Algeo. She is also survived by her grandchildren: Clifton E. Beyer III (Jorge Urbina), Stephanie Beyer, Michael Beyer (Jenny Reeves), Michael Tempesta (Susie), Kathy Tempesta, Mary Adolphson (David), Kelly Tempesta (Kelli Jo), and Jody Anderson. She also had 11 great grandchildren and 4 great-great grandchildren; many nieces and nephews also survive her. She was preceded in death by her husband Steve in 1969, son Patrick, son Jim, Grandson Tim Tempesta, brothers and sisters in laws Edgar (Anna Marie) Nelson and Jim (Rose Helen) Nelson, and her parents JC and Olga Nelson.

Funeral services will be held at 11:00am on Saturday, November 7, 2020 at First Lutheran Church, Cumberland, with Rev. Tim Schmidt officiating. Visitation will be from 10:00am until time of service. Masks and social distancing are a requirement of the church and they were also Jean's wishes. The service will be available on 94.3 on the radio if you wish to remain in your car in the parking lot. Seating within the church will be every other pew. A separate burial service at Lakeside Cemetery will be next summer.

In lieu of flowers, memorials are preferred to be made to the First Lutheran Church. Cremation Society of Wisconsin is handling the arrangements.

Lois Ann Lapcewich

Lois Ann Lapcewich, 80, of Cumberland died Monday, October 19, 2020, at her home in the company of her family. She was born April 13, 1940, in Plymouth, WI to Joseph and Rhea (Resimius) Mayhew, was raised in Greenbush, and graduated from Plymouth High School in 1958. She earned her Teaching Degree from Sheboygan Falls Normal School in 1962, then finished her Bachelor of Science - Lower Elementary from UW-Oshkosh in 1969.

She was married in Glenbeulah, WI on June 6, 1970, to John Lapcewich. She taught elementary school in Oshkosh until 1974, then moved to Galax, VA, for two years until moving to their permanent home in Cumberland in 1977. Lois worked as a teacher's aid in the Cumberland Elementary School for many years assisting children with learning challenges. Lois also spent time caring for children in their home and at daycare, and volunteered her time with St. Anthony Church's Choir.

She was a loving friend and will be remembered for her contagious laugh, quick smile, and an eager willingness to help anyone in need. She made a positive impact on the lives of many people.

She is survived by her loving husband, John; children: Tonia (Brian) Hyllengren of Hamilton, OH, and Joe Lapcewich of Brooklyn Park, MN; grandchildren: Savannah Juetten and Ashton Hyllengren; sisters: Jill (Jack) Langemak, Bonnie Boesel, and Mary Mayhew, all of Plymouth, WI; many nieces, nephews, other relatives, and friends.

“Kind Words”

by Pastor Tim Schmidt

First Lutheran Church, Cumberland

Anxiety weighs down the heart, but a kind word cheers it up. Proverbs 12:25

Does anyone else feel the weight of these days? These are pretty heavy times in which we live. A global pandemic. Civil unrest. A contentious political battle. These are anxious times, there is no doubt. And I think that our hearts do feel heavy. They feel weighed down.

And here in the ancient book of wisdom from the Old Testament known as Proverbs there is something that is said to help a heart that is weighed down: and that is a kind word. A kind word cheers up a heart that is weighed down. It might not seem like much, but a simple kind word can help ease a little of that heavy-heartedness in one another. It can help to ease that anxiety that we feel and that burden that we bear.

So maybe it doesn't seem like much. But how about we give it a try? Share an extra kind word with someone today. It may not solve the world's problems, but it might be a start. I happen to think that if we were all more worried about being kind than we were about being right, it would make an immeasurable difference in our world today. And maybe it isn't such a small thing.

So share an extra kind word with someone today...and help ease the burden that is on their heart.

God Bless

Cumberland Enters the Twentieth Century

As Cumberland entered the Twentieth Century, the life expectancy for the average American was 48 years, the average family income $3,000 and many families still had no indoor plumbing, a phone, or a car. Approximately 60 percent of the country lived on farms and Toledo, Ohio, was bigger than Los Angeles.

There was no Y2K threat as the cities residents gathered in Miller Hall for New Year’s Eve 1899 to dance to the music of the Rice Lake Band and Orchestra. Calling it, “One of the greatest social events of the year,” the Advocate would eventually say the attendance “Was not as big as it should have been.”

New Year’s Day in the “Island City” included a wedding involving school teacher Cora Shipman and Edward Miller, a sheep ranch farmer from Boise, Idaho. Their plans were to stay here until the end of the school year when they would move to Idaho permanently.

With Cumberland now 26-years old, the high school had 80 students enrolled for the year, although the average attendance would be only 43 a day. In the January 11, 1900, Advocate, Principal Pease announced that beginning the following week, recesses would be decreased from 15 minutes to five minutes, while the new end of the school day would be 3:50 pm.

It wouldn’t be until January 28, that winter, that the Beaver Dam Lumber Company would finally start up their season. Warmer temperatures and a lack of snow had previously made it too difficult for 300 idle teams of horses and their teamsters to haul logs from the surrounding area.

In February, the Omaha Railroad Company announced an increase in rates on their daily trip from Cumberland to Minneapolis. Previously costing $2.35, the new rate would increase to $2.65 after February 25.

Late February saw a fire in town, when Miller’s Hall would suffer the fate right before an event one evening. Volunteers fought frozen hydrants to put out the blaze before there was serious damage to the building, although three volunteers would suffer injuries while helping out.

This led to a “Monster Fire Sale” during March as the Company Store advertised damaged clothing, dry goods, shoes and groceries. Included in the sale were Men’s Duck Coats for 98 cents, Men’s Damaged Summer Underwear for 14 cents, and Old Style Women’s Jackets for 49 cents.

In April, big news came to Cumberland, when Postmaster Johnson announced a rural free delivery of mail beginning May 1. Running approximately 25 miles long, it would go along the most populous rural roads of the Island City.

The search for carriers for the route began as the Government offered $400.00 per year for the job. They would also be allowed to charge a small fee for carrying packages and parcels that the Advocate said, “Could increase their income very materially.”

By July 1 the salary had risen to $500, while two more routes would be added by the end of the year.

Prior to the high school graduation of 13 students on May 31, there began to be a lot of discussion about the need for a new high school building. Local resident comments appeared in the paper, including one by P.H. Peterson, who said of the old building, “That old rookery is a poor excuse for a school house.” The discussion would continue throughout the year, but it wouldn’t be until January 4, 1904, when classes would finally move to a new school on Second Avenue. Prior to graduation that May, the high school baseball team played a series of games. They would defeat Rice Lake 35-7 in Cumberland, but drop an 11-10 decision to the Warriors in Rice Lake. Numerous Cumberland errors helped lead to the defeat as the Advocate said, “The Rice Lake grounds were in poor condition, as the Cumberland boys are used to a good infield.”

Memorial Day included a program to honor our fallen servicemen at Lakeside Cemetery, led by a procession that started from the school house. It would end with the singing of “America” by those in attendance.

Before May was over, the Advocate would also cover a scary run in between a black bear and Comstock resident, John Mays. While tracking a bear he had wounded, Mays was surprised by the animal, who would badly damage his hand before his brother could finish the bear off. His arm would later be amputated.

For those who were sick or suffering an ailment, there were plenty of remedies that could be found in each paper.

Dr. J.H McLean’s “Liver and Kidney Pills” could be purchased for $1.00 and offered “Speedy Relief and a Permanent Cure.” You could take “Hood’s Sarsaparilla for Your Tired Feeling.” Lydia E. Pinkham’s “Vegetable Compound” could be used for “The Serious Ills of Women,” while “Cathartic” could be used to, “Bring Back a Dead Liver.”

As summer began, the June 14 Advocate was already advertising July 4 in the city. The celebration would be called a great success despite some rain during the morning. The day started with a parade, included a ball game and exciting street sports, and ended with a display of fireworks.

Rain became a huge problem as we moved into August. A huge storm on August 9 saw lightening strikes damage numerous buildings and kill livestock. Described as, “The worst electric storm ever seen in Cumberland,” among the buildings damaged were the Methodist Church and barns at the Finson and Waterman farms. The worst hit, however, came at the Light Plant, where several transformers were struck and knocked out.

The heavy rain would eventually raise the area lakes, “To the highest levels ever recorded.” Crops were ruined, roads were gullied and bridges washed out. One overnight rain would yield over six inches before sunrise. Despite the rain, M. Boyden grew some amazing blood beets, weighing 7 to 10 pounds each. He would say of them, “They would make a fine exhibit at any fair.”

For those that had some spare time that fall, a “Special Excursion” was offered by the Omaha Railroad Company. For $2.50, you could get a round trip to Duluth, which included a steamboat ride from Duluth to Two Harbors.

Cumberland also hosted the Inter-County Fair for its residents in September. The weekend included merchandise, animal exhibits, games and horse races. One hundred seventy-five family tickets were sold as well as numerous single tickets.

As school began, football became part of the extracurriculars for our students. The Beavers dropped a 5-0 game to New Richmond and lost 11-6 to Eau Claire, while unfortunately having its game against Superior called off when, “Center Guy Sampair moved from the community.” With a Presidential election coming in a few days, October 29 saw a rally held at Miller Hall, now recovered from the fire in February. Called a “Lovefest” for Republican candidate William McKinley, he would go on to win the election. Unfortunately, less than a year later he be assassinated and replaced by Teddy Roosevelt.

By 1900, the population of Barron County had hit 10,000 people and a new Courthouse was needed for the region. A bid of $35,000 was accepted and work began on a new building located where it sits today.

As fall continued, numerous social events where held in the city. The People’s Players put on two days of plays at the Opera House in early November, while Miller’s Hall was the scene of a “Girls Ask the Boys” Dance on November 29. They each helped set the tone for a busy Christmas season.

The Christmas advertisements were commonplace throughout November and December. The Company Store offered, “Holiday bargains with hints for the ladies.” Zimmerman Jewelers advertisement for Christmas said, “Some things are always acceptable,” while SW Hines said it had, “Holiday Goods for the young and the old.” The December 20 Advocate announced the various Christmas activities upcoming later that week including a visit from Santa, a high school program, and the many Church services throughout the city and the surrounding area.

Nineteen hundred would end as it came in, at a New Year’s Eve dance at the Opera House. Again it was advertised as the “Greatest social event of the year.” Cumberland residents had made it through the first year of the Twentieth Century and were ready to see what 1901 would bring.

CUMBERLAND SCHOOL DISTRICT

November 2, 2020 CSD Return to School Plan Update

The Cumberland School District is two months into the 2020-2021 school year, and so far, so good with our COVID-19 reporting. We knew going into this year that it wasn’t going to be easy and that it would be virtually impossible to predict what would happen on a day to day and week to week basis. We also knew that our schools wouldn’t be exempt or free from having to deal with COVID-19 related issues. COVID-19 has been present in all three of our buildings with all the proper protocols and notifications that were established being followed to help reduce the potential spread in our schools and our community. To date, all COVID-19 related issues that we have had to deal with have come through external exposure brought to school with no internal transmission occurring. Adjustments continue to be made as we provide the most effective risk mitigation that we can for our students and staff. As of this week, we have less than eight percent of staff and students district-wide that are absent due to COVID-19 related reasons.

We will continue to need your help if we plan to keep our doors open. The combined effort of parents, students, staff, and community members to make this work will continue to be our strongest allies.

Parents need to continue to monitor their child for symptoms of illness before sending them to school, and most importantly, keep them home if they are sick. The symptoms of COVID-19 are very similar to the common cold, allergies, and influenza; parents can’t assume their child has a cold. Face coverings remain key in limiting the spread of viral droplets inside the schools. It is important that a clean face covering be used each day. Hand hygiene either by washing or use of hand sanitizer to reduce the spread of germs is another key action. We have worked hard to physically distance the students in the buildings to limit the number of students that could be affected if there was a positive case. As the weeks pass by, we learn more and continue to make changes to our plan. We are fortunate that our public health nurses are helpful with guidance, answering questions, and illness management.

Isolation - A person has tested positive for COVID-19, they will be out of school and staying at home, away from others, for 10 days from the start of symptoms or the test date.

Quarantine - A person that has been identified as a contact to a person that tested positive for COVID-19. This means within 6 feet for a total of 15 min in 24 hours. Will be out of school 14 days from the date of last contact with the positive person.

Self-isolation - A person has symptoms that are possibly COVID-19. The parents are choosing not to have the student tested for COVID-19. The student will be considered a suspect case for COVID-19 and remain out of school for 10 days after the symptoms start.

If you have general COVID-19 questions call 211.

Sincerely,

Barry Rose, Ed.D
Superintendent
