Emergency Haying and Grazing Availability in Barron County as a result of Extreme Drought

(Barron, WI), The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) Executive Director Sarah MacDonald in Barron County today announced that FSA is accepting applications for Emergency Grazing on CRP acres for producers impacted by extreme drought.

During the primary nesting season, grazing of CRP acres may be authorized to provide relief to livestock producers in areas affected by a severe drought or similar natural disaster. The primary nesting season for Wisconsin ends August 1st. Beginning August 2nd producers are first eligible for emergency haying. Counties are approved for emergency haying and grazing due to drought conditions on a county-by-county basis when a county is designated as level "D2 Drought - Severe" according to the U.S. Drought Monitor. FSA provides a weekly, online update of eligible counties.

Producers can use the CRP acreage under the emergency grazing and haying provisions for their livestock or may grant another producer use of the CRP acreage.

Producers interested in emergency haying or grazing of CRP acres must notify and receive approval from their FSA County Office before starting any activities. This includes producers accessing CRP acres held by someone else. To maintain contract compliance, producers must have their conservation plan modified by USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and approved by the FSA.

Emergency CRP Haying and Grazing Option

CRP emergency haying and grazing is available in eligible counties as long as the stand is in condition to support such activity subject to a modified conservation plan. Hay may be cut once in eligible counties each program year (August 2-August 31). Haying must be concluded prior to August 31 according to an approved conservation plan to allow time for regrowth prior to winter conditions and must be removed within 15 calendar days of being baled.

CRP emergency grazing is available in eligible counties as long as it does not exceed 90 days or November 1st and must be stopped when the minimum grazing height is reached, as established within the modified CRP conservation plan or when the county is no longer eligible for emergency haying and grazing.

Non-Emergency CRP Haying and Grazing Option

For producers not in an eligible county, there are options available under non-emergency haying/grazing provisions outside of the primary nesting season, including:

- Haying of all CRP practices, except for CP12 Wildlife Food Plots and several tree practices not more than once every three years for a 25% payment reduction. For non-emergency haying requests, 25% of the requested acreage must be left unharmed.
- Grazing of CRP acres not more than every other year for a 25% payment reduction.

Reach out to your Barron County Office to learn more about the haying and grazing options available to you. More information in USDA disaster assistance is available at farmers.gov/recover.

SBA Working Capital Disaster Loans Available in Wisconsin Due to Secretary of Agriculture Declaration for Ongoing Drought

(The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) announced that Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs) are available in parts of Wisconsin for small businesses, small agricultural cooperatives, small businesses engaged in aquaculture, and most private non-profit organizations affected by the drought that began Aug. 1, 2023.

The declaration covers the primary counties of Burnett, Sawyer, Washburn and the contiguous counties of Ashland, Barron, Bayfield, Douglas, Polk, Price, and Rusk in Wisconsin, and the contiguous counties of Chisago and Pine in Minnesota. "When the Secretary of Agriculture issues a disaster declaration to help farmers recover from damages and losses to crops, the Small Business Administration issues a declaration to eligible entities, affected by the same disaster," said Kem Fleming, director of SBA's Field Operations Center

East.

Under this declaration, the SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) program is available to eligible farm-related and nonfarm-related entities that suffered financial losses as a direct result of this disaster. Apart from aquaculture enterprises, SBA cannot provide disaster loans to agricultural producers, farmers and ranchers, but nurseries are eligible to apply for EIDLs for losses caused by drought conditions.

The loan amount can be up to $2 million with interest rates of 4 percent for small businesses and 2.375 percent for private non-profit organizations, with terms up to 30 years. The SBA sets loan amounts and terms based on each applicant's financial condition. Eligibility is based on the size of the applicant, type of activity and its financial resources. These working capital loans may be used to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable, and other bills that could have been paid had the disaster not occurred. The loans are not intended to replace lost sales or profits.

<https://disasterloanassistance.sba.gov/ela/s/>

Disaster loan information and application forms may also be obtained by calling the SBA's Customer Service Center at 800-659-2955 (if you are deaf, hard of hearing, or have a speech disability, please dial 7-1-1 to access telecommunications relay services), or by sending an email to DisasterCustomerService@sba.gov. Loan applications can be downloaded from the SBA's website at sba.gov/disaster. Completed applications should be mailed to: U.S. Small Business Administration, Processing and Disbursement Center, 14925 Kingsport Road, Fort Worth, TX 76155.

Submit completed loan applications to SBA no later than April 8, 2024.

This week: "Eight Bears: Mythic Past and Imperiled Future"

by Gloria Dickie

c.2023, W.W. Norton $30.00 250 pages

Throughout most of your childhood, he was rarely more than three feet away.

He never said much, even when you hugged him too hard or let him fall to the floor. He kept your secrets but not all his fur; and he kept watch, even after he lost one eye. Your childhood teddy was an important part of your life but as you'll see in "Eight Bears" by Gloria Dickie, his forebears are quite another story.

When she first moved to Boulder, Colorado, Gloria Dickie was charmed. she was once "a child obsessed with wild creatures," and "bears were frequent visitors" to her new hometown. But over time, the romance waned. Having bears everywhere was not good for Boulderites or for bears.

That's the story around the country: we don't know how to live alongside bears and "so-called 'problem' bears" often die because they've become habituated nuisances. Bears are stronger than they look and can ruin a car in minutes. They can annihilate a farmer's herd or flock. Some bear species – Dickie says that a mere eight of them survive on the planet today – are downright Papa-Bear-grumpy and will kill a human in a heartbeat.

And so she went searching for bears.

Ursas, says Dickie, were once thought to be our closest relative, perhaps because they look very human when standing. Humans haven't treated them very well through the centuries, though, at least not until Theodore Roosevelt refused to shoot one in 1902 and people started appreciating bears a little more.

Still, today's bears struggle.

In South America, Dickie found that climate change is hurting the shy, gentle spectacled bear that lives in the cloud forest of Peru. In India, she discovered a small bear with big attitude, one that kills dozens of humans annually and maims even more. She learned the politics of pandas and she tried to visit a bear bile farm in Vietnam. She learned about super-smart black bears, the management of grizzlies, and a North American bear species that can hold an entire town hostage...

So, it turns out that Goldilocks was correct: "Eight Bears" is just right.

Rather than go all science-y on her readers, author Gloria Dickie brings the story of the world's bears to a level that's understandable by almost anyone. Oh, there's science in here, yes, but it's accessible, even fun, and can easily be paraphrased explained to a youngster. That's great, if you're going on vacation to Bear Country.

Speaking of which, the globe-trotting adventure that Dickie took to find out about the bears is good reading, too, and filled with stories. Animal lovers will enjoy knowing what's being done for the bears around the world, while bear victims will learn what's being done to ursines to keep them from destroying livestock and lives.

Don't be surprised, in either case, if you're not happy.

This is a wonderfully accessible book that's deep enough but not fluffy, and that's really quite informative. If you know bears – or you want to – "Eight Bears" is a book to cuddle up with.

If you're in search of something great to take in the car, on vacation, on the tractor, or to the lunchroom, Terri can be reached at bookwormsez@yahoo.com. Happy Reading!
